LOCK REVERE 'INFORMERS' IN NORFOLK TO FOIL GANG

Mail Theft Loss Set at $50,000

NEW YORK, Dec 4 (INS)—The most baffling mail robbery New York has seen in 14 years took something less than three minutes to complete, netted the bandits at least $50,000 and provided circumstances that occupied full attention of postal inspectors today.

Not until Peter Scheib 34, fishing for eels in the East River pulled up a mail sack and another and another—five in all—did the robbery come to light.

Hasty checkup first set the loss at anywhere from $8000 to $2,000,000. Later, Inspector James J. Doran in charge of postal operatives put it at $50,000 adding "most of which I believe was non-negotiable."

11 SACKS GONE

A total of 11 sacks was found missing and time and date of the theft was set at shortly before 9 o'clock Thursday night, presumably when the mail truck carrying the sacks from the general postoffice to the Lackawanna ferry terminal was halted for only a few minutes at a Tenth avenue train crossing.

As to definitely terming disappearance of the sacks a "robbery," he said:

"First of all let's say lost or stolen. We don't know which it is at this time."

Doran, refusing to identify the truck crew by name, said the men told him that they tested the lock on the rear of the ruck before leaving the postoffice loading platform but when the truck pulled onto a ferry and their attention was called to the rear doors which were swinging open, the lock hung loose.

CHECK CONTENTS

Checking the known contents of the bags, the inspector reported that there was a $7000 cash shipment in one pouch. There was also a ring valued at $400.

Only four of the bags carried registered mail and there were 60 registerd pieces in all, Doran reported.

The mail sacks were found inside burlap bags which were hauled up by the fisherman, Scheib.

The mail truck from which the pouches were stolen was the type used for valuable mail and was manned by an armed driver and two armed guards.

The robbery, the most daring since Gerald Chapman's $1,000,000 raid on the United States mails, appeared to have been the work of a "master mind."

Wellesley Girl Graduate Suicide

Alice Carnrick, 22, Grieving for Her Dead Parents

Death of a socially prominent and wealthy graduate of Wellesley College in a New Jersey mansion left her by her late parents brought to light today a pathetic story of parental devotion and a vain attempt to forget.

Miss Alice Katharine Carnrick, 22, was found at the wheel of her automobile in a locked garage that is part of the estate of her parents at Montclair, N. J.

Dr. George Olcutt, assistant county physician, pronounced the girl's suicide after he talked with servants, the only other occupants of the rambling mansion.

Notified of his sister's death early today by a Boston Evening American reporter, Carnrick said:

"I was afraid of this. Poor kid. She loved mother and dad so."

Servants had told Dr. Olcutt, he said, that the girl had lately gazed for hours at photographs of her father, who was a leading chemical manufacturer in New Jersey until his death in 1928, and of her mother, the former Katherine Schuler, who died in 1933.

The girl's brother was too overcome to say much more today. He said he planned to leave the Brooks line fraternity house in which he lives here, to take care of funeral arrangements at home.

Miss Carnrick returned to her New Jersey home Thanksgiving Day after cutting short a world tour that she had made in the hope of forgetting the sorrow attendant upon the death of her parents, her brother said.

Mayor Adds 14 Firemen, Boosts 7

Mayor Mansfield today announced seven promotions and the appointment of 14 new members of the Boston Fire Department.

Three lieutenants were raised to the rank of captain and four privates received lieutenant rank. The new men were selected from the Civil Service lists.

The mayor said the appointments were made to fill vacancies caused by death and retirements. There is still a shortage of six men necessary to bring the department to full strength.

$300 INCREASES

Receiving an increase in salary from $2500 to $2700, the new captains are Patrick J. Mahoney of Clive street, Dorchester, now attached to Engine 32; John F. O'Brien of I street, South Boston, Engine 10, and Francis B. Hanron of Calumet street, Roxbury, Engine 37.

The new lieutenants who will be raised from $2100 to $2340 a year are Hoseman Henry H. Dionne of Standard street, Mattapan, Engine 46; Hoseman William F. McDonald of Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, Engine 28; Ladderman George R. McLaughlin, Jr., of Perthshire road, Brighton, Ladder 11, and Hoseman Frederick B. Seitz of St. John street, Jamaica Plain, Ladder 17.

NEW APPOINTEES

The new appointees will receive annual salaries of $1960, getting yearly increases until the maximum of $2100 for the classification is reached at the end of five years. They are:

Thomas J. Flaherty of Percival street, Dorchester; Robert E. Kenneally of Elm street, Charlestown; John J. McCorkle of Euclid street, Dorchester; Philip J. Murphy of Conant street, Roxbury; Michael A. Langone of Endicott street, North End; Joe Stamno of Dudley street, Dorchester; Stephen J. Riley of River street, Hyde Park.

Philip A. O'Farrell, of Hichborn street, Brighton; John C. McLaughlin of Brentwood street, Allston; James J. Hurley of Chelsea street, East Boston; Joseph A. Hurley of Groom street, Dorchester; John T. Tretter of Dunklee street, Brighton; William J. Wiegand, Jr., of Dorchester court, Dorchester, and Charles J. Ferguson of Bothwell street, Allston.

Farm Bill Foes Hit Act As 'Illegal'

King Leads in Senate Attack; Roosevelt Plan May Lose

In Washington

WAGE-HOUR—Prospects for debate on measure delayed as result of new opposition to several of its features and by prolonged farm-relief battle.

LABOR—Peace parley between John L. Lewis and William Green, union leaders, collapses. New effort planned to unify rival groups later in month.

TAXES—House committee still studies general revision of measure to meet demands of busines.

Bitterly criticizing the measure, King told the Senate it proposed an improper exercise of Congressional power because it was "nothing more nor less than a compulsory price-fixing bill."

He contended the proposal would set up "an absolute master" over all agriculture under "tyrannous

Roosevelt Begins Trip to Capital

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4—President Roosevelt brought his Florida fishing trip to an abrupt end today and started north for Washington to get further dental treatment for an infected jaw which has failed promptly to heal.

The Chief Executive will be back at the White House Monday afternoon, instead of Thursday morning, as originally planned.

Presidential Secretary Marvin H McIntyre, who made the announcement of change in plans, insisted that Mr Roosevelt was "in excellent physical condition" aside from the delayed healing" of the cavity in his right lower jaw where a badly abscessed molar was extracted on November 18.

Charles St. Jail Raid Blocked by Move

Fearing gangland vengeance and a possible gun raid on Charles street jail, state officials today ordered Michael Kingsley of Everett and Samuel Zarinsky of Revere, material witnesses in the slaying of Louis Gaeta, Revere "gambling king," transferred to Norfolk Prison Colony.

Meanwhile Attorney-General Paul A. Dever announced that all evidence thus far gained in the probe of the killing of Gaeta as well as all Revere rackets would be presented Monday before a Suffolk County grand jury. Dever said he would present the evidence personally but declined to reveal what witnesses he would produce.

The transfer of Kingsley and Zarinsky—made in utmost secrecy—came after the men had signed statements telling of their alleged connections in Revere rackets, and had given the names of "higher-ups" involved and the identity of the Gaeta killer.

DENY PART IN MURDER

The two prisoners were heavily guarded during the transfer. State and Boston police as well as officers from the department of correction wisked the two men over the road from Boston to Norfolk in an automobile which bore no police insignia.

Kingsley and Zarinsky, each held in $50 000 bail, were under the care of a physician at the jail last night, it was learned.

They were suffering from a "nervous condition and indigestion."

Their secret transfer was ordered by Attorney-General Dever and District Attorney William J. Foley with the permission of Commissioner of Corrections Arthur T. Lyman.

In their statements to police officials both men "opened up," but declared they were not involved in any way in the Gaeta murder, 11 days ago in front of a Shirley avenue, Revere, cafe.

As a result of their statements and other investigation, underworld characters—heretofore disguised as prominent civic leaders in six Massachusetts cities—today faced questioning by state detectives.

Investigators have "definite leads" of "highly respected men" being powerful racketeering figures in Cambridge, Everett, Som-

Dog Holds Fort In Stolen Auto

Repels Police After a Ride With Thief

But an automobile thief, apparently, is instinctively the dog's best friend.

The woman, who lives in Washington street, Dedham, reported to police yesterday that her car, in which was her dog, was stolen in Roxbury.

Cruising through the South End today, officers Joseph W. McCleary, William J. O'Connor and Thomas F. Butler of the special service squad found the abandoned machine at Washington street and Broadway.

They opened a door of the machine to have one of the officers drive the car to headquarters, when the spitz snapped at the policeman.

Coaxing proved of no avail so the officers towed the car to an Albany street garage.

There attempting took up the job but the dog refused to leave the car or let anyone in. They even fed the animal, got him asleep in the back seat—but with one eye open, apparently.

Fire Chief and 3 Hurt in Crash

The chief and a lieutenant of the Canton fire department, and two other men, were seriously injured today when the automobiles in which they were riding sideswiped each other at Pearl and Central streets, Stoughton.

The coupe in which Chief King C. Endicott and Lieutenant George Titus were riding rolled over three times after the collision and crashed into a telephone pole, snapping it off at the base.

The sedan hearing the other victims of the accident careened wildly across Central street, sideswiped a parked automobile, and crashed into a tree.

Lifted from the wreckage were Stephen Tarton, of Waltham, and Freeman E. Reid, of East Cambridge, by pedestrians and occupants of other automobiles. They were rushed to the Norwood Hospital.

Abrasions and severe wounds of the scalp were suffered by all four.

Chief Endicott and Lieutenant Titus were en route to Stoughton court to testify in the case of a youth who had been arrested for sounding false alarm.

Her Cries Rout Thief With $29

Screams of Miss Eleanor DeCourcy, 25, of Fenwood road, Roxbury sent a prowler fleeing from her bedroom after he had snatched her handbag containing $29 and valuable papers.

Miss DeCourcy, past president of the Emblem Club, prominent Boston fraternity, was preparing to retire in her first floor apartment when she saw a hand reach into the open window.

As the man climbed into the room, Miss DeCourcy screamed and ran out calling her father. When they returned the intruder had escaped with the handbag.

Labor to Demand Vast WPA Plans

Either That or Vast Relief Fund Needed; Says 5,000,000 Idle

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Labor is preparing to demand that the Roosevelt administration launch a new public works program or make huge additional appropriations for relief if the business recession continues.

This was made clear today following a round-table conference of New Deal economists, members of Congress and labor spokesmen.

5,000,000 JOBLESS

"There are, according to our figures, between 5,000,000 and 7,000,000 able-bodied citizens who want to work, who have no jobs and are not on WPA," Pressman told the gathering.

"Something has to be done. Labor is better organized and is not going to take the same distress it experienced between 1929 and 1933. If industry cannot give these people jobs, then the only agency we know of is the federal government.

"To talk about balancing the budget with 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 people out of work is something labor cannot understand."

A highly-placed New Deal economist gave a too rapid rise in profits a drop in Government spending and depressions.

REMEDIES CITED

He named as possible remedies vast open market operations of the Federal Reserve System to force money into investment, revival of Government spending and a housing program. He asserted that decrease in government spending turned business downward.

Leon Henderson, economist for WPA, said the recession largely to a lack of balance in price structure.

"I believe this is a depression and that if we work like everything we can turn it into a recession," he said.

Henderson declared that short selling was more pronounced last fall in brokerage houses than outside. He asserted that monopolistic maintenance of prices in many industries is unsound, and tends to throw the entire price structure out of line.

Senator Bulkley (D.) of Ohio said the group he is working on a plan for formation of a permanent council, designed to aid government and business in charting their courses and avoiding future depressions.

Utilities Facing Tests Before High Court

Monday Session May Bring Decisions In 31 Cases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Supreme Court met today to prepare for a busy session Monday at which opinions may be delivered on subjects ranging from payment of interest on government bonds to valuation of public utilities.

Outstanding cases among the 31 listed for decision Monday or later involve:

1—Whether the Treasury must pay interest on its gold bonds that were called for redemption in advance of the maturity date.

2—A request by the Roosevelt administration that an historic "prudent investment" basis rather than a "fair present market price" or what frequently is termed a "reproduction cost" basis be used hereafter in valuing public utilities for rate-making purposes.

3—The right of the Department of Justice to proceed in the Southern New York Federal District Court with its anti-trust dissolution suit against the Aluminum Company of America. The Aluminum Company contends any proceedings should be brought in the Federal District Court at Pittsburgh.

4—A ruling on whether the 1934 communications act prohibits use in federal criminal proceedings of evidence obtained by wire-tapping. The government used such evidence in obtaining conviction of four men on a charge of smuggling alcohol into New York.

5—Whether states can impose a gross income tax on money paid contractors by the federal government for constructing Grand Coulee Dam in Washington State and locks and dams in West Virginia.

Arguments will begin Monday or Tuesday on litigation brought by the Duke Power Company and the Duke Power Company in an effort to prevent the government from making loans and grants for construction of publicly-owned electric power plants.

Deanna on $2500 Week Shuns Mink

DEANNA DURBIN
"Aw, Beaver'll Do Me"

New Star, 15, Wants Only 'Simple Gifts' For Birthday

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4 (AP)—This is Deanna Durbin's 15th birthday, but she will not be given that customary Hollywood success symbol, a mink coat.

The James Durbins could well afford it, but they just aren't mink minded.

"Deanna likes little things, lots of little packages to open," says her mother. "She asked for perfume and books and phonograph records. Her wrist watch has stopped running, and I suppose we should get her a new one. Maybe we will."

Deanna was asked whether she'd like a mink coat.

"Oh, sometime, maybe," she said. "I'm getting along very well in heaver now. I guess a mink coat would be kinda conspicuous, wouldn't it?"

Deanna's birthday almost coincides with the beginning of her second big year in the movies. Herbert Marshall and Norman Taurog and others who are making "Mad about music" will give her a party on a stage tonight.

Later the Durbins will have the usual family dinner at home, with Deanna's older sister and her husband the only guests.

Edgerton Gets O. K. by Senate Committee

Satisfies the Probers of His Eligibility as U. S. Judge

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Chairman Burke (D.) of Nebraska said today a special judiciary subcommittee "undoubtedly" would report favorably the nomination of Professor Henry White Edgerton of Cornell University to be judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Edgerton told the committee this morning at a hearing called to investigate his qualifications that he thought it "valid and legitimate" for courts to pass upon the constitutionality of acts of Congress.

An answer to a question from Senator Borah (R.), Idaho, he also said he was not a member of the Ku Klux Klan and had never been. The question of Justice Hugo Black's membership in the Klan caused an uproar this summer.

An article written by Edgerton for the Cornell Law Review, called to the attention of the Judiciary committee, led to the appointment of the subcommittee of Senators Burke, Borah and Van Nuys (Dp., Ind.), to inquire into his qualifications.

Some Senators had said they thought Edgerton's article indicated opposition to judicial review.

Burke said he was "entirely satisfied" with Edgerton's statement. Borah and Van Nuys also expressed satisfaction. Burke said the subcommittee would speed its report to the full committee as soon as the subcommittee could meet again and vote formally on the nomination.

Gen. Johnson Says:

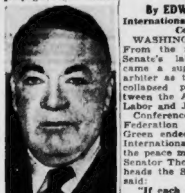
Michelson Blast Deal Bosses' Idea

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Somebody in the Democratic National Committee gave the office to the American Goebbels, Charlie Michelson, Third New Deal minister of propaganda, to smear this column by smearing this writer. Last Sunday he sent out a printed committee smear release to all papers.

They should have used one of their other literary assassins. To smear somebody else, Charlie is the champion smearer of all time. But he can't smear me. He is the old maestro who taught me nearly all I know about needling a stuffed shirt. His smearing me is exactly like Socrates smearing his soul-child, Alcibiades.

Also, as old soldiers say, Charlie and I have "slept under the same blanket" in the same campaigns. He could smear like a mud dauber. Johnny Raskob, who enabled him to become smear chief No. 1 in literary history in the great off-season smear-Hoover campaign that made both Mr. Roosevelt's election and Charlie's smearish perpetuation.



HUGH S. JOHNSON

But Charlie couldn't smear me. After all, that was a pure business transaction. My teaming with Charlie was pretty much personal. Charlie is awfully sentimental that way. While he tried feebly to drip the old poison, he balanced each kick with a lick and the net result was a great boost, for which—thanks.

• • •

Who ordered Charlie to this attempted fratricmear? A year ago, you could have said, "Why, Jim Farley is the elected head of the Democratic Committee." You could still say that, but it wouldn't mean anything.

Now, you don't go to Jim Farley any more than you would go to the king, if you wanted anything in Italy. Both he and Victor Emanuel are just stuffed specimens in a glass case.

Mussolini is your man in Rome. In Washington, you go to Tommy Corcoran—chairman of the Third New Deal. And so do both poor old Charlie and poor old Jim. It's pretty pathetic for such old moustachios of the guard, but that's how it is.

In addition to saying how ugly my face is, one of Charlie's boltest commanded razzberries is that, from my criticism I think I could run the jobs of each Henry Wallace, Henry Morgenthau and Harry Hopkins better than they. Sure I could. Almost anybody could.

Charlie Michelson could do it better, and Charlie McCarthy could do it precisely as well because he would have to do it in exactly their way.

• • •

Hard-boiled, old newsman, Charlie, knows this. He has not even as high an opinion as I have of some of this bunch. I know my face would stop a clock, but would the faces of Henry, Henry and Harry stop a Follies girl?

And that beloved sour old puss of Charlie's—he could rent it out for a gargoyle over a Chinese joss-house to scare the devil away. What public issues are faces, anyway?

I know who gave this gentler Goebbels his smear orders. Jim Farley has a fair conception that, just because you hire a man you don't buy his heart soul and conscience. He would have asked somebody else.

The standards of these gazabos don't measure up to those of an ex-boxing commissioner. They could either, themselves, have discussed my criticisms or had Charlie do it. That is provided for on the ask for any champion of anything I criticize, and the press is always theirs. Their chivalrous and intellectual idea is to use other people's money to hire a professional smearer—not to debate the allegation but to smear the allegator.

• • •

OK. I'm Charlie's prize pupil and notwithstanding Mr. Coolidge's classic caution about entering scent-sprinkling contests, I'm ready. But I couldn't crack Charlie. Besides being my buddy, he's just their hired man. I've been over-specific in this stuff leaking out direct from them all over the lot for months.

Any such unlovely contest—if contest it must be—will be between principals so far as I am concerned. But wouldn't it be a much more constructive thought to stick to the issue?

Neutral Arbiter Urged Between Lewis, Green

Senate Labor Chief Seeks to Revive Peace Parleys

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (INS)—From the new chairman of the Senate's labor committee today came a suggestion for a neutral arbiter as the best way to revive collapsed peace negotiations between the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis' CIO.

Conferences between Lewis and Federation President William Green ended with no results, and International News Service learned the peace meetings are off. Today Senator Thomas (D.) of Utah, who heads the Senate labor committee, said:

"If each side has a plan of arrangement and neither will accept that of his opponent, it seems to me that a third and neutral party, acting in the role of arbiter and thoroughly in sympathy with the aims of labor, provides the best method for solving the problem of this impasse.

LABOR MUST UNITE

"Even if physical unity between the CIO and the A. F. of L. cannot be attained in this manner, it seems that a unity of endeavor and purpose could be achieved. Labor, to exercise its just functions in this country, must be united in its actions, at least."

Thomas said he did not intend to confer with the CIO-AFL breach uninvited, but if either or both sides in the labor conflict asked the help of the labor committee in such a move, it would be available.

LEADERS GRIM

As this proposal was made, leaders of the factions returned to their desks, with the peace meeting thing at an end. Both Lewis and Green looked grim as their third and final conference ended.

Green said he and Lewis would report details of their meetings to the full membership of standing peace committees on December 21.

Today, Green presided as his executive council met, heard the draft of a wage and hour bill that the A. F. of L. will submit to Congress as a proposed amendment to the pending wage-hour bill in the House.

he is in good spirits, sports a good coat of tan and merely needs to get back to where treatment by his own dentist will be available.

Mr. Roosevelt and his seven fishing companions will reach Miami Sunday afternoon, immediately boarding a special train for Washington, Pilots for the stops at Warm Springs and Gainesville, Ga., have been "postponed," according to McIntyre.

The yacht Potomac is leaving its anchorage off Dry Tortugas, 165 miles south of Miami, this afternoon.

McIntyre denied that either the tense situation in Shanghai, where U. S. marines almost brushed with the Japanese, or the snarled Constitution muddle had anything to do with the executive's decision to get back to Washington.

FISHING AGAIN

Upon reaching the capital, it was expected the President would immediately call in Dr. Arthur H. Yando of the Naval Dental Corps, who extracted the abscessed molar.

The President spent today lolling over a mass of mail and other official papers flown out to him by a navy sea plane and also found time to go fishing in a small boat with others of his party.

The following dispatches from James Roosevelt to temporary White House offices in the Miami-Biltmore hotel briefly outline the activities of the party in the past 24 hours:

"We have kept no statistics on size and weight largely to eliminate all possible arguments. Catch of the President as well as party includes barracuda, mackerel, skipjack, ladyfish, yellow tail and blue runner. The President completed all mail and plane took off at 12:30 (Friday afternoon); all out fishing this afternoon.

Farm Bill Hit as Illegal; Roosevelt Plan May Lose

Benefits under the proposed program, he said, were the "lure" that would "seduce farmers away from sound policies in the future by obtaining gifts, subsidies and bounties as a trade for abandonment of personal rights and the surrender of the right of individual states."

LASHES INDIFFERENCE

King took his colleagues to task for the small attendance that has marked debate on the measure.

"Senators have made up their minds apparently," he told the score of senators present, "and are indifferent to criticism or eulogy of the bill.

Three administration supporters joined critics of the bill today asking for revisions which might delay a vote until January.

"I don't think the bill can pass as it stands now," said Senator Berry (D) Tennessee. "I am not satisfied with it.

"I would not be surprised if it will be changed so much that its friends will be willing to vote it ge back to committee."

Senator Pepper (D) Florida, said he would not vote for the bill unless broad changes were made.

WAGNER OPPOSED TOO

Senator Wagner (D) of New York, who has sponsored many administration measures, indicated he would favor simplifying the complex "ever-normal granary" and its attempts at crop control by compulsory methods.

Their objections were added to opposition voiced by a number of Senators in two weeks of debate. Majority Leader Barkley, trying to hasten a vote, called the Senate for its first Saturday meeting this fall.

Both House and Senate chieftains want to end debate by next Wednesday, but prospects for a final vote by that time were doubtful. Senator Barkley was reported to be sticking with Republican Leader McNary for an agreement to limit discussion.

Only two and a half weeks remain of the special session, and so far neither House has approved any item on the President's program.

KING OFFERS LIMIT

Senator King, who has opposed numerous Administration measures, offered an amendment that would limit farm bill appropriations to $500,000,000 a year.

Senator Borah (R.), Idaho, returned to his old-time form yesterday as the "Lion of Idaho," to denounce the bill in a 90-minute oration.

Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana suggested "that Congress and the government departments take a little more time and pass effective legislation in the regular session."

Most senators agreed that if the farm bill were sent back to committee for revision it would not pass until the regular session.

House leaders, meanwhile, swept aside every major change proposed to their bill except the amendment by Representative Boileau (Prog.) of Wisconsin. Boileau's amendment would deny soil conservation payments to farmers who planted dairy feed crops on acreage withdrawn from cultivation of soil-depleting crops.

OVERRIDE REPUBLICANS

Some leaders predicted that even it would be defeated—or at least modified—when the final vote is taken.

Their most immediate concern, however, was a promise by Rep. Patman (D.), Texas, to demand that the House substitute payment of "parity" prices to farmers for provisions calling for discretionary loans to growers of wheat, cotton and corn.

The House overrode Republican suggestions to lighten compulsory control retirements, but decided tentatively to limit to $7500 benefits payable to a single former. Members rejected proposals of Boileau and Representative Hoffman (R.) Michigan, to nullify the committee's ideas that compulsory marketing quotas for tobacco should be approved by a vote of two-thirds of the growers.

In the House, battle lines were forming for consideration of the administration's wage-hour bill on December 13. Opponents expect to try to return it to the labor committee for revision and thus tie it up until the regular 1938 session.

Senate and House committees still were at work on the President's Housing program. Some members of the House group said they probably wouldn't be ready next week because of further testimony from representatives of banks and loan associations.

Leaders were not hopeful of obtaining action at the special session on any other items on the Administration program. Government reorganization, regional planning, tax revision, and strengthening of the anti-trust laws will carry over until January.

Abandoned Baby In Grave Condition

LOWELL, Dec. 4—Abandoned on a door-step in freezing temperature, a six-weeks-old girl was in critical condition today at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Chickens on Spree In N. H., Prices Off

NASHUA, N. H., Dec. 4 (AP)—Grant Hall, president of Hudson, N. H., Poultry Producers' head, said today chickens in this area had been on a "jaysee" spree for eight months.

Some believed it a sign of a hard winter, others thought good feeding and breeding were responsible. All agreed the heavy output had forced prices down, and caused some poultrymen to lose money.

Murder Suspects Held

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (INS)—Two men were arrested early today and questioned in connection with the Central Park murder of Charles A. Klein, 63, accountant.

Three Injured In Lynn Crash

Three persons were injured in a collision between two cars on Western avenue, Lynn, today.

In one car were Miss Ora Zanier, 24, Howard street, Lynn, and William Long, 21, Over street, Salem. Miss Zanier suffered a broken nose Long sustained cuts of the face and knee.

Paul Butler, 26, Granite street, Salem, and Paul W. Foss, 37, Carlton street, Peabody, were in the other car. Butler sustained cuts, but Foss was uninjured.

Missing Brighton Girls Back Home

Three Brighton high school girls, alleged to have played hookey and reported missing last night, returned home this morning, according to a report made by parents to the Brighton police.

They are Claire Sullivan, 17, of Meade street, Allston; Catherine Curran, 16, of Western avenue, Brighton, and Eleanor Feeney, 17, of Royal street, Allston.

Legislator Tells Guardian Group at Harvard Neutrality Is Best

President Roosevelt's international policy of "concerted action" is unconstitutional and certain to lead America into war, Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York asserted at the current Harvard Guardian conference on the United States foreign policy.

Fish's argument was the spearhead of a solid attack launched against Roosevelt by professors, politicians, and business men now assembled at Harvard to discuss the Administrations latest moves in the Chino-Japanese situation.

"As the ranking member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, on which I have served the House for seventeen years," he asserted by proxy, "I can at least state what the Republican attitude is on international issues is spokesman of my party in the House, and to some extent in the country.

DANGEROUS POLICY

"If we assume the policy that we must take part in all the international quarrels throughout the world, and go around with a chip on our shoulder, passing out moral judgments, we will always become involved and circumstances force us into war.

"The American people must decide whether they want to police the world and become involved in ancient foreign blood feuds and boundary disputes, and whether they are prepared to become involved in every war throughout the world.

"I am convinced that the American people are overwhelmingly against the use of economic sanctions, force or compulsion, or anything that would compel us to go to war in attempts to preserve peace.

"There is a curious psychology that has developed in the United States since the World War, that because we became involved in that we must enter every other war that breaks out whether in Europe or Asia.

"It is well to remember that in the World War such countries as Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland and Spain, all much nearer the war zone, never entered the conflict.

"We were forced into it because we insisted on maintaining, under international law, the right to the freedom of the seas, and shipped arms and ammunition to warring nations. The natural result was that German submarines attacked our ships without warning, our honor was impugned, and we were forced into war against our will."

The President is in duty bound to enforce a policy of strict neutrality towards Japan and China, Fish said, because the Neutrality Act is automatically invoked when a state of war exists.

Staunch support of Representative Fish was voiced by Professor Sidney Fisher of Columbia. Peffer said the Administration's policy of intervention would definitely lead to war.

MAPS SAFEST COURSE

"Non-action, at present the only alternative to war, is America's soundest course," he said. "It may also be best for the rest of the world. There is little enough chance to escape a world war at best."

William Potter Lage, New York attorney, warned the danger of war today is just as present as it was in 1916. He asserted:

"As was the case in 1915 and 1916, it was Congress, reflecting the will of the people, that sought and demanded neutrality.

"Only the Executive department is to be feared in these matters. He secret understandings with foreign powers are the Achilles' heel of the United States."

Further like warnings were sounded by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, and George Sylvester Viereck, author and ex-propagandist.

Strikers Picket Ford Dealers

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4 (AP)—The CIO United Automobile Workers' UUnion, which has been on strike at the Ford Motor Company's St. Louis assembly plant since Nov. 24, broadened its activities today by picketing seven Ford dealers.

The union charged the Ford agencies havebeen supply the plant with men and with automobiles to carry them to and from their jobs. Milton N. Johnson, the plant manager, has denied employing any but regular Ford workers.

Richard Frankensteen, UAWA international vice president, declared workers at the Long Beach, Calif., plant had "voted unanimously" for a strike and at Kansas City "scab kitchens have already been set up and the various committees are ready for the call."

"I cannot say give the exact date the men will be called out," he added.

He asserted the St. Louis strike, now in its second week, "is part of a carefully planned national campaign to unionize Ford."

"If it becomes necessary," Frankensteen declared, "we will completely tie up production by calling out our men in the various material supply companies which supply the Ford plants."

Fugitive Slayer Shot and Caught

LAGRANGE, Ind., Dec. 4 (AP)—Robert Shaw, 27, hunted for 22 hours for the slaying yesterday of Deputy Sheriff Harry Spice, was shot and captured today as he made a break from a corn shock. He was reported not seriously wounded.

Sought for the shooting of a Kendallville grocery clerk in a holdup Thursday night, Shaw was traced to a farm yesterday.

8 in Flying Boat Hop U. S. in 14 Hours

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP)—Richard Archbold of the American Museum of National History, New York, and seven companions arrived today in his 14-ton flying boat after a non-stop flight of 14 hours, 10 minutes from San Diego, Cal. The ship, in which Archbold plans to fly to New Guinea for scientific research, has a cruising range of 4000 miles.

Expert Describes Wally As 'Almost Best Dressed'

Wears Gowns to Suit Her Taste, Not Set Styles, She Says

PARIS, Dec. 5 (INS)—Reports published abroad that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor plan to sail for the United States January 10 were flatly denied today by Dudley Forwood, the Duke's equerry.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (INS)—The Duchess of Windsor is "almost" the best-dressed woman in the world, according to Baroness Rudolf de Wardener.

However, the baroness, directrice de salon for Maison Schiaparelli, couturier patronized by the former Wallis Simpson, today declined to estimate the best-dressed number one woman.

"The Duchess of Windsor doesn't try to set styles but dresses to suit her own taste," said the baroness, the former Bijie Martin, pretty New York society girl.

"Her taste is excellent and most conservative. She is interested in clothes that are becoming to her, easy to wear, simple and practical."

TOUCH OF COLOR

The Duchess usually sticks to black and white, but wears a good deal of blue of all shades—the "Wallis" blue of her wedding gown, aquamarine, bright navies and dark sapphires.

She likes a touch of color, using red at the belt line in one dress recently purchased. She chose some wine red semi-sports clothes and one brown suit.

The dinner dress she favors in Paris is a Prince of Wales plaid lame, of black silk thread and silver thread, woven like a man's suiting. The Duke of Windsor always wore this material when he was Prince of Wales.

"OFF THE FACE" HATS

The duchess chooses dresses of medium length and her dinner gowns are "just off the floor." She practically never has a dress with a train. She likes the new long jacket line effect in suits, and has recently bought several with a plaid, checked or plain skirt for next spring.

She prefers "off the face" hats and neutral hosiery. She wears sets of jewelry that match, for instance, a platinum necklace studded with stones matches her bracelets. In the daytime, she wears one brooch and perhaps two diamond clips on her dress.

"Men are definitely getting more clothes conscious, even the servant about what women are wearing," remarked the baroness.

The only American style dictrice in Paris, the baroness is the daughter of Ricardo Martin, first American tenor ever to star at the Metropolitan. It is her first trip home in twelve years, and she has the following reaction:

"In Paris, you can classify a woman by the way she dresses, but here you can't tell the banker's wife from the janitor's daughter."

Only the "almost best dressed" woman in the world is the Duchess of Windsor in the eyes of Baroness Rudolf de Wardener, Parisian style expert. So you can judge for yourself in this latest picture of Wally, showing her posing at a window in Paris, wearing the latest addition to her extensive wardrobe—a dinner dress of the famous Prince of Wales plaid, carried out in black and silver lame. For jewelry the Duchess wears a bracelet and matching necklace of flexible oblongs of platinum with flat jeweled ends of rubies, sapphires and diamonds. The clips are diamonds.

Need New Discoveries For Bodily Resistance Against Wearing Out

By G. B. LAL
International News Service Science Editor
(Copyright, 1937)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Prolongation of normal human life beyond the present span can be achieved through new scientific methods, it was stated here today by Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel prize winner.

The famous surgeon-scientist of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and instructor of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in life science research spoke to the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. He struck the keynote of his new scientific art of making us live longer thus:

"Any true prolongation of life will require not only protection against disease, but improvement of the quality of body tissues and blood. That is, more resistance of the body to wearing out."

NEW METHOD SOUGHT

Medicine and hygiene, by preventing and curing disease, have already increased the average duration of life.

"But," said Dr. Carrel, "hygiene and medicine have already completed their work. Perhaps other discoveries may bring about prevention of heart and vascular (arteries) diseases, rheumatism and cancer. And greater longevity will be obtained.

"Hereafter further lengthening of human existence will demand a new method.

"Hygiene, comfort, good food, athletics fresh air, sun baths have failed to increase the span of life. Senile deterioration will manifest itself in the future at the age of 80 to 85 years, as it does today and did in the past."

Experiments were carried out successfully by Dr. Carrel in prolonging the span of life of mice. The details were given by him.

SHORTENED MICE LIFE

"Some years ago I made a study of the longevity of 32,000 mice divided into groups of 250 to 550 individuals," he said. "They belonged to eight different strains or lines of heredity. Each had a certain length of life."

How could changes in food habits, in general environment conditions affect the inherited life span?

Mice that had lived cooped up in boxes for many years were suddenly set free in a greenhouse. They burrowed themselves into soil, ran and fought in open space and multiplied freely.

Dr. Carrel said:

"They became stronger. But the duration of life was decreased. Free life was 34 per cent shorter than sheltered life. Such was the price of liberty."

FASTING PROLONGED LIFE

By decreasing food, through periods of fasting in several generations, the mice became more active, stronger, and lived longer. From these experiments it was demonstrated that—

"Longevity, although based in hereditary tendency, can be artificially modified in a large degree. Therefore, we are not forbidden to hope that a wise handling of environment may lead to lengthening of our existence."

Battle to Check Fatal Infant Disease

10 Babies Killed by Strange Ailment In Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 4—With 10 infants dead here of a mystery intestinal disease, physicians and scientists worked frantically to save the lives of eight others at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Autopsies have failed to reveal the exact nature of the ailment. There was reported to be a violent inflammation of the intestinal tract in each case, with death following in a matter of a few hours. The disease was believed to be a variation of the intestinal inflammation reported in several cities since 1934.

FORCED TO CLOSE

The hospital was forced to close its doors to obstetrical and infant treatment cases the day before Thanksgiving.

Sister Adolphine superior of the hospital, reported the cases to Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the city board of health, but news of the deaths was divulged for the first time yesterday.

"There were 18 babies in the hospital at the outbreak," Sister Adolphine said. "We have done everything to guard over the rest."

Dr. Bundesen said that as far as board of health authorities know there were no other cases of the disease in Chicago than those at the hospital.

He warned parents, however, to keep their babies under close observation and summon medical aid at the first sign of intestinal disorder.

PATHOLOGIST BAFFLED

Dr. Richard H. Jaffee, head of the pathological institute at Cook county hospital, was openly mystified after performing two autopsies upon victims.

"It will take several days before we get something definite from the analysis of the victims' intestines or before we will be able to isolate the germ causing the disease," Dr. Jaffee said.

"It has a very rapid course.

"The babies develop diarrhea two or three days after birth. Three days later, they die. The symptoms are as follows: First, the children get diarrhea; then their entire bodies turn blue; they develop convulsions; then they die."

Sister Adolphine stated that a careful inspection by health authorities of the hospital plumbing, food supply and nursery equipment had revealed no factor which could possibly have affected the infants.

Virginia Walker Scores Speedy Success in Films

Virginia Walker, 23-year-old Back Bay beauty, who but a short time ago was acting in amateur theatricals, has had her dream of Hollywood success come true.

Signed to a contract only last summer, Virginia has been chosen as "just the right type" to play the supporting role to Katharine Hepburn in the picture "Bringing Up Baby."

Yet film executives say it really isn't a mystery at all—every one of them that has studied her say that she is possessed of one of the greatest personalities ever to come to Hollywood.

Hollywood first became interested when they saw her face from magazine pages in soap advertisements. The Boston debutante had lent her name for cash to many products such as cosmetics and clothing.

Virginia's mother was born in Paris and her father, William Homer Walker, graduate of Harvard law school, died when she was a little girl. Her home formerly was on Commonwealth avenue and she spent her winters in Florida.

She is a brunette with warm brown eyes and of the soft-spoken, delightfully charming type that movie producers always dream of but seldom find.

In "Bringing Up Baby," Miss Walker will part her hair in the middle, wear glasses and make up like a New England school teacher. That, of course, in Hollywood. But the experts declare that even this disguise will fail to hide her outstanding personality and the charm that all Hollywood aspirants pray for but which so few have.

Pittsburgh Dark In 'Smog' Bank

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4 (AP)—Smog-bound Pittsburghers sniffed and sneezed in a cold, dirt-laden haze today and hoped for a good stiff breeze.

Weather observer W. S. Brotzman said the steel city was caught in the center of a slow-moving high-pressure area. Wind above the downtown section was moving about three miles an hour, he said. Too feeble to blow away the accumulation of smoke and fog.

Automobile headlights failed to penetrate the haze and traffic snarled at a dozen intersections.

Dr. I. Hope Alexander, city health director, warned of the danger of pneumonia and urged persons with colds to go home and stay home.

Student Room Blocked With Stale News

A resident student in Winthrop House, Harvard, was the victim of a prank yesterday unparalleled in the history of the college.

Returning to his room he had to shove and puff and heave to open the door. Once in, he found the room jammed from floor to ceiling with crumpled newspapers.

The perpetrators, evening up an old score, spent three hours at their task and purchased 41 worth of old papers in Harvard square to do the job. The last papers had been tossed over an open transom.

The victim borrowed his way into the center of the room, then swept all the papers into the hallway, blocking it and the adjoining stairways under two feet of paper. Janitors labored three hours clearing them up.

Hunt New Clues To Maine Wife

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 4—Sheriff Henry E. Burnell and 15 deputies today turned to other fields in their search for Mrs. Annie K. Phinney, 40, after a day of fruitless digging for her body on the Phinney farm in South Portland.

The woman, who disappeared in August, was not reported missing to police until October. Her husband, Clinton C. Phinney, said that he at first believed she was with relatives.

Sheriff Burnell said the search would continue although thus far he had discovered nothing to indicate his belief she met death by foul play.

Nighties Send Sodero to Reno

Touch of Silk Drives Music Man "Crazy"

All on account of his wife's silk nightie habit, Signor Sodero, former WNAC musical director, was revealed, as divorce-hunting Reno today.

The Signor can't stand silk lingerie, nighties or anything else. In fact, he once said during a court siege of his matrimonial woes, "the touch of silk drives me crazy."

Pens that his wife, the former Alys Sharkey of Roxbury, ex-vaudeville actress, that she adopted such slogans as "Silk on deaf ears, Sodero said. He complained she even exasperated him further by equipping her Pekingese with a silk nightie.

The question of what a devoted wife should wear when retired for the night caused a rift in their romance in 1929, three years after they were married. Sticking to her silks, Alys separated from her husband.

Pastor Seeks New Trial in Slaying

PITTSFIELD, Ill., Dec. 4—A formal motion for a new trial for Rev. C. E. Newton was filed here today. It contended that the aged minister was convicted of murder of Mrs. Dennis Kelly because of "passion and prejudice and wrongful conduct of the jury."

Defense counsel Martin S. Turner charged the verdict which fixed Newton's punishment at life imprisonment, was "contrary to the law and evidence."

Triduums to Open Sunday for 3 Days

Triduums in honor of the Immaculate Conception of the Mother of God will be held tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday in Catholic churches throughout the archdiocese in preparation for the feast day next Wednesday.

The Rev. Frederick N. Buehm, S. J., of Boston College, will be preacher at triduum services at the Immaculate Conception Church, North Cambridge.

Music Soothes Penal Breasts

Folsom's New Warden Tries Out Idea

FOLSOM, Cal., Dec. 4 (AP)—"It's never been done before," the surprised guard said.

"I've never been here before," Warden Clyde I. Plummer of Folsom prison replied.

So the guard rounded up four convict "swing" artists, and the 2800 convicts—all two-time losers—have music with their meals now.

"My idea is that it may be a good incentive for the musicians and help prison morale," said Plummer, successor to Clarence Larkin, who was killed in an unsuccessful break attempt last fall.

Woman Passes 100 Tomorrow

Mrs. Mary E. Leahy of 523 East Fourth street, South Boston's mother of nine children, is 100 years old tomorrow.

Today she said she would live that century over again exactly as she has done since she was born in Kensales, Ireland, December 5, 1837.

Tears Blind Their Eyes

International News Photograph Service

Their faces reflecting the shock of their loss, Mrs. Rudy Kling and her son view the scene where her husband and father of the boy met his death. The picture was made at Miami air races yesterday, sent by Soundphoto to New York and hurried to Boston by plane. Kling, former garage worker in Ohio, acquired fame as a flier during the last year. The wife of Frank Haines, also killed in the sky crash, saw the accident, as ded Mrs. Kling and her son.

Wives See 2 Pilots Killed in Air Race

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4 (INS)—Rudy Kling of Lemont, Ill., killed here during a race at the Miami air meet, was the fourth of eight Thompson Trophy winners to die in an airplane crash. Frank Haines, of Detroit, also was killed in the collision.

The wives of both Kling and Haines as well as Kling's small son witnessed the tragedy.

HIT DOWN DRAFT

A split second separated Kling and Haines in both life and death. As they rounded the north pylon in the third lap of the 10-mile trophy race, hugging it to avoid losing time by swinging wide, they hit a down draft of air and plummeted to earth.

Haines crashed first; on his tail was Kling. Their planes slashing streaks of silver as they roared earthward from a heights of only 50 feet.

Airport officials believed the last act of both pilots was to cut off the ignition switches of their switches of their planes. Both planes were so badly wrecked that it was impossible to determine, however, if this had been done.

The bodies of both fliers were tightly wedged in the wreckage and it was some time before they could be removed.

WITTMAN WINS RACE

The accident happened 20 minutes after Jacqueline Cochrane, in private life Mrs. Frederic Odlum, wife of a New York financier, had landed at the airport after setting a record for a nonstop flight from New York to Miami. The pretty aviatrix, flying a high speed De Seversky plane, covered the 1170 miles in four hours, 12 minutes and 28 seconds.

Kling, a garage man in Lemont, rose to aviation fame early last September at Cleveland when he captured first place in the Thompson Trophy race, feature attraction of the national air races.

Kling was the leading individual performer of this year's national air races. Besides winning the Thompson Trophy race he won the Greve trophy and the Henderson merit award, collecting a total of $14,000 in prize money for the four-day meeting.

Haines had been a private commercial pilot, at Harper airport, Detroit, but was a comparative newcomer to big-time competitive racing.

Accepts Corps Post

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Jacob Felderman, Providence, R. I., had accepted appointment as first lieutenant in the Medical Reserve Corps, the War Department announced today.

Death Folds Their Wings

Transfer Revere Informers to Balk Gangs

Authorities Fear Gun Raid on Boston Jail; New Killer Clues

Publication of their names, according to investigators, would "rock" their respective communities.

Questioning of those men is expected to lead to other so-called "big shots" in smaller cities and surrounding towns.

A Leominster man, investigators alleged, has been directing statewide rackets for years. He pays immunity and had paid large sums of money for "protection."

WHAT THEY TOLD

Statements from Kingsley and Zarinsky, according to investigators included:

The naming of the Gaeta slayer, the motive and a vivid account of the shooting.

Warnings were sent to witnesses of the slaying and told "not to talk or else."

The name of the real slayer of Paymaster Rose in the Ward Baking Company holdup and robbery 17 years ago, although Jerry Geddings, known as "Jerry the Pole," was executed in the electric chair for that murder in 1923.

The name of the murderer of Carmelin Guiffre, alias "Goofy" Campbell, shot-gunned to death in the North End six years ago. This slaying was never solved.

A surprising move in the State investigation today had been the questioning of Miss Josephine Farrell, city auditor, by Assistant Attorney-General Dersham and Captain John A. Dorsey, Boston police officer attached to the attorney-general's office.

INTENSIFY HUNT FOR PRESTON

Meanwhile, police intensified their search for James Preston also known as Joseph Preston, sought in a nationwide alarm for questioning in connection with the murder of Gaeta, who was slain outside a Shirley avenue, Revere, cafe.

Sergeants Joseph F. Condon and William H. Owen, members of Captain Sheehan's "racket busting" squad, together with state detectives made a series of raids last night and early today in search of Preston but were unsuccessful.

It was learned that instructions were sent out to the officers to "take no chances."

RAIDS IN 3 CITIES

The order, in effect, was:

"Give him no chance if he does any shooting."

Word that Preston "would give trouble" led to the police order of taking more precaution. Heretofore police conducted their raids obvious to danger.

Four houses were raided in Winthrop. Other raids were in Cambridge and Lynn. A Cambridge club was also visited by the police in an effort to learn of Preston's whereabouts.

The statements taken from the men in Charles street jail were being guarded today with the utmost secrecy.

"I won't talk about that," Captain Stokes declared. "That is government evidence."

But it was known that investigators have sufficient evidence in connection with "big scale" rackeering to bring about many indictments.

BROTHERS FREED

Investigators revealed that the statements of Kingsley and Zarinsky resulted in the release of Max and Samuel Lerner, brothers, who had been taken into custody by Captain Sheehan and his men as "suspicious persons." The pair were released early yesterday.

In his statement, Kingsley is supposed to have insisted that he had nothing to do with the actual murder of the Revere "gambling king" and didn't know that Gaeta would be shot.

The prisoner said that on the day of the murder he was waiting for the man who killed Gaeta, explaining that the latter usually drove him "into town" after collecting the plays.

Up to three years ago, according to the inmate's alleged statement, Gaeta worked for the man who shot him to death. But three years ago, the statement said, Gaeta suddenly "began to take charge in Revere," resulting in a rising feeling of animosity between the two.

TELLS OF "FREEZEOUT"

The Charles street jail prisoner is supposed to have repeated several times that money was "paid off for protection" and that Gaeta "outbid" the man who finally killed him, leading to more arguments.

He is supposed to have said that what actually led to Gaeta's death was that several days before "word was sent out" by a certain party that the betting places had to be shut down unless all the "business" was turned over to Gaeta.

The prisoner said that a "lot of people" knew that trouble among certain racketeers in Revere was inevitable if any attempt was made to "freeze out" the man who eventually murdered Gaeta.

TELLS OF ROW, KILLING

He then told relative to the day of the slaying, how he met the man as usual outside the Shirley avenue cafe and that they went inside.

He said that a furious argument started between the man and Gaeta, which finally led to the sidewalk so as not to attract attention of the customers inside the cafe.

He said Gaeta in the midst of the heated argument turned and started to go into the cafe. Just then, the prisoner said, the man "pulled a gun and let him have it." He declared that the killer might have had a "few drinks" and was a "bad man when he's drinking."

NAMES ACTUAL KILLER

Zarinsky also is alleged to have named the murderer in a statement which outlines the gambling set-up in Revere.

The statement, it was learned, places Zarinsky as the operator of a small horse booking agency next door to Gaeta's cafe.

He said that for a long time he turned his play over to the man sought for Gaeta's murder until just prior to the slaying. Then, it is alleged, Gaeta notified him and other bookies that they must do business with him.

A Revere police officer backed up the order with threats to close up all horse-booking agencies, according to the statement in the hands of investigators.

He declared that the murderer became incensed when he learned that the business was being "highjacked" and went to the Gaeta cafe. He said Gaeta was summoned to the street and that after a heated argument was shot to death on the sidewalk.

SAYS HE SAW KILLING

The prisoner was quoted as saying that he witnessed the shooting and saw the murderer calmly pocket his gun, get into his automobile and drive off.

Zarinsky also paid a tribute to the murderer, saying that he also had been fair and a good fellow but that he was bad when he had been drinking.

Asked why Miss Farrell, his former secretary, was questioned, Mayor O'Brien declared:

"I haven't any idea but you can use your imagination. I suppose they talked to her about the little black box."

He referred to the finding of a box containing about $12,000 after a shortage of $12,000 in the Revere city treasury had been reported while Mayor O'Brien was treasurer. It was later explained that the money had been mislaid.

STATEMENTS TAKEN

It was learned that six witnesses were questioned last night and afternoon at secret Boston headquarters, set up by Assistant Attorney-General Dersham, in connection with the $12,000 shortage.

The witnesses, it was learned, included several attorneys and Revere city employes. A stenographer took down the testimony of the witnesses, it was known.

It was also learned today that investigators have statements from certain Revere police officials that there are no records of any gambling arrests in the North Shore city covering the past three years.

Cambridge, Everett and Malden were known to be the next objectives of state police following their racketeering purge of Revere.

RAPS REV. F. GAMBLING

He is the Rev. Frank G. Potter of Cambridge, who announced he would reveal the result of a private 11-month investigation of rackets in his congregation tomorrow night in Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Cambridge.

In discussing his coming revelations, the Rev. Mr. Potter rated gambling as "Public Enemy No. 1."

"New England has gone gambling crazy," he stated. "More than 26 per cents of all the horse race gambling in the United States is done within a 100-mile radius of Boston."

Sift Captain Sheehan Note Threat

SGT. CONDON SGT. OWEN

Sergeant William Owen, right, and Sergeant Condon of Captain Sheehan's squad read the threatening letter sent to Sheehan. Printed in separate strips like a telegram, it contained only six words: "Sheehan get out by tomorrow noon." While police moved to run down the threat writer extra precautions were taken for Sheehan's safety as he prepared to bring investigators close to the final chapter of the Gaeta Revere murder mystery.

New Welfare Frauds Bared

Patrick J. Moynihan, executive director of the City of Boston welfare department, today announced that $110 persons now receiving welfare money are at present employed and fraudulently accepting city aid.

Director Moynihan said this was the beginning of a city-wide purge of persons who continued to accept assistance after they secured positions. The investigation started one week ago.

Many of the persons, revealed by the investigation, have bank accounts and will be prosecuted in the lower courts by the city law department.

Although the investigation is only a week old and more than 100 names are under observation at the present time, Moynihan announced he hoped to go through the entire welfare rolls before January 1.

He pointed out that 60 per cent of those now employed and refusing to accept city aid were working on night jobs and it would have been impossible for them to do them without the cooperation of employers.

The director said he had no idea just how much money the city has lost through these frauds, but admitted it would run into thousands of dollars.

2 Men Slashed In Revere Row

Two men received wounds, possibly from a knife, during a fourman brawl in a Broadway, Revere, cafe early today. All four were arrested on charges of taking part in an affray.

Joseph DeSisto, 24, Rose street, Revere, suffered gashes on the face and chest. William Jennino, 36, Lincoln street, Revere, sustained cuts on the face and arms. They were treated by the police doctor.

Arrested with them were Virgino Sarcone, 55, Malden street, and his brother, Mercurio, 50, Kingman street, both Revere.

Soviet Diplomat Quits, Sees Death

PARIS, Dec. 4 (AP)—Alexander Barmine, former first secretary of the Soviet legation at Athens, said today he had signed his "death warrant" by resigning from the Russian diplomatic service and denouncing Moscow's recent "purge" of alleged enemies of the state.

His statement declared that a "reactionary dictatorship" had led to the execution of all the old Bolsheviks.

Actor Ralph Lewis Dies, Crash Victim

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4 (INS)—Ralph Lewis, noted character actor of stage and screen, died today of injuries sustained in an automobile accident last Thanksgiving Eve.

Fire in Ship's Hold Quelled at N. Y. Pier

A line official said about 30 bales valued at $1000 were destroyed.

Middies in Tummy Upset

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 4 (AP)—Twenty-five Midshipmen returned to duty at the Naval Academy today after treatment at the hospital for upset stomachs that followed a luncheon consisting mainly of pork and sauerkraut.

Manila Faces Typhoon

MANILA, Dec. 4, (AP)—The third typhoon within a month swept toward Manila tonight from the Pacific ocean.

Revere Killer's Capture Sure With Stokes on Job

If Louis Gaeta, slain gambling king, were alive today he probably would offer 100 to 1 odds that his murderer will not escape state police.

For Gaeta, like the slayer himself, knew that the state police became odds on favorites when Captain John F. Stokes and his associates took up the trail of Revere racketeers.

At present, there is but one unsolved murder on the records of the state police—the slaying three years ago of Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mt. Herman School for Boys at Northfield.

It was Stokes, the quiet spoken raider, however, who broke through two doors and leaped on the armed Edward P. Simpson, convicted killer of two Newton policemen.

CAUGHT MILLENS

It was Stokes, with his "sidekick," Lieutenant Joseph L. Ferrari, who solved the most serious crime outbreak in Massachusetts history, that of the Millen-Faber gang, who murdered two Dedham policemen.

Both the slayer, his friends and his enemies know that capture is very near and plans for his surrender were seriously discussed by henchmen when the state police were called in.

At the same time, a new racket-buster appeared on the Revere front in the person of John S. Dersham, assistant to Attorney-General Paul A. Dever, and a former state representative.

With Special Prosecutor Dewey's racket clean-up still reverberating in the gangster lairs and law-abiding temples alike, Dersham's job as Dever's "No. 1 man" in Massachusetts is similar in many respects to that which confronted the New York prosecutor.

John Dersham's career began early. Even while in school he showed legal tendencies. In 1910, he entered Catholic University in Washington, where he took a six years course combining college and law.

He was graduated in 1916, and the next year was admitted to the bar. When the World War broke out, he immediately enlisted—and he declares he was the first to be admitted to the army in Massachusetts.

He was married in 1925 to Rosalie Flynn of Pawtucket, R. I., and they took a home on Main street, Uxbridge.

The next year, he was elected to the Uxbridge city council and the school committee.

The year after that, he ran for the legislature, and was the first Democrat in 20 years to be elected to the legislature from the sixth Worcester district. He was 30 years of age at the time of his election.

He was in the legislature for eight years.

In 1935, he was appointed by Paul Dever to be assistant attorney-general. The appointment placing him in charge of the racket investigation is the most important that he has received.

Effort to Balk Hearing on Tax Scandal Seen

Prosecutor Charges Defense Counsel Seeking Delay

Assistant Attorney-General Maurice M. Goldman today charged that counsel for three deputy tax collectors accused of gross misconduct in the collection of automobile excise taxes were attempting to block the hearing on the complaints.

His allegation was made after the deputies appeared with attorneys at the second session before State Tax Collector Henry F. Long in the State House. They had been unrepresented at the first hearing last week.

The three deputy collectors, among nine facing ousting for alleged collection of excess fees, were Frank C. Murray of Quincy; Morris Younan of Boston, who collects in Marlboro; and John M. Loud, of Arlington.

TRIPLE ARREST

Under the assistant attorney-general's grilling, Murray admitted he had arresed Wilner N. Wyman, of Hoffman street, Mattapan, a former Quincy resident, three times at once.

Murray revealed he had retained $12.50 in charges for collection of a $7.87 bill for taxes.

He told the commissioner he had split his fee with another Quincy deputy, Milton H. Dunston.

REQUIRED BY LAW

The deputy denied that he had put his hand on Wyman at any time, as required by law in making an arrest.

—Did you ask him for any property to avoid arrest?

A—I did.

Goldman read a portion of the stenographic record of Wyman's testimony, in which Wyman stated he was positive he had not been requested to post property to avoid arrest.

Then Goldman asked:

Q—Did you give him any opportunity to give a bond?

A—I didn't suggest it. That was up to him.

Under the law in such instances, bond may be posted to avoid arrest.

Commissioner Long, asserting that Goldman had established a prima facie case at the last session, announced that, today, hearing would be turned over to the defense.

He said he did not consider it necessary for Goldman to produce additional witnesses, whom the assistant attorney-general said he had ready.

ASK FOR CHARGES

The three defense attorneys in general asserted that the charges against their clients were vague, demanded the right to cross-examine witnesses who have already testified and asked for a list of formal charges.

George F. Williams, representing Murray, said the latter's cross-examination of the witnesses at the last session was made "on the spur of the moment" and was improper. He declared that his client understood that the hearing was to have been merely a conference.

Alfred Wunderly, representing Long, asserted that he did not believe the men could be dismissed as a result of testimony presented at the hearings and demanded that any facts making dismissal possible be revealed.

OFFERS WITNESSES

At this point, Goldman told Long that under the law he had the right to remove the deputies for cause. Asserting he had shown sufficient cause for dismissal, the assistant attorney-general offered to produce additional witnesses to support his case.

Schipa, Opera Star, to Sing At Christmas Basket Party

3-Hour Show to Feature Gala Charity Event Sunday Night

TITO SCHIPA
Aids Basket Fund

Winging to the East today by plane came the famed Tito Schipa, leading lyric tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who tomorrow night will lend his voice to the big Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund show at the Penthouse, atop the Hotel Bradford.

Immediately after the golden-voiced tenor had landed in California from Australia on the last leg of a world-girdling concert tour, he telegraphed to Boston and said he would be delighted to sing at tomorrow night's show.

At 3:30 tomorrow afternoon, Schipa and Norma Jean Erdmann, Boston's own lyric soprano, give a joint concert at Symphony Hall, and at the Basket Fund show a few hours later, she will sing with him.

ARMY OF STARS

Reservations for tomorrow night's charity show were rolling in at the Bradford today, so get yours in early unless you can face disappointment.

Many prominent Greater Bostonians will be at Penthouse tables when the curtain rolls for the fastest-stepping entertainment bill assembled in many a month.

Reservations have been made by Police Commissioner Joseph T. Timilty, Attorney-General Paul A. Dever and leading figures in the sports, business, professional and political worlds.

And they will be well satisfied with the night of entertainment and the dazzling array of talent.

In addition to Tito Schipa and Miss Erdmann, the following will be included in the entertainment roster:

The famed N. T. G.—Nils T. Granlund, king of Broadway night life, who is bringing over The Three Sailors, The Three Lovelies and dancing Dorothy Jeffers, all from Grandlund's "Broadway Midnight Follies," now playing the RKO Theater, and Frances Grant, Somerville girl, clever, talented dancer, now appearing at the same play house with Granlund.

GALA PROGRAM

The entire new Penthouse show, "The International Follies."

Frank Ward and his Rhythm of the Dawn Orchestra, with Carmen Trudeau, soloist; Irene Holland, Virginia Vinan and Aileen Barry, dance specialists; Meta Carlyle, in songs; Joy Arden, charming dansseuse; Tom Foran and the Tiffany Sisters.

Ora and Minerva, startling aerialists; Enters and Borgia, dancers; Raymond Pike, juggler and genius of balance; the Ten Continental Beauties; glamorous Gwen Marcowe, the most perfectly-formed girl in England; the dancing Haze Sisters; Billy Payne, famed Boston thrush.

Lovely Janet Carroll, golden-voiced soprano from Steuben's; Tom Harty, eccentric dancer and comedian, and Jerry Murray, dancer from the Westminster.

Also, if the English players, Jack Buchanan, Evelyn Laye and Adele Dixon, who open Tuesday at the Shubert in "Between the Devil," arrive here in time Sunday, as planned, they will appear at the big benefit show.

The role of master of ceremonies will be filled by Joe Rubin, brother of Benny Rubin, the film comedian, featuring a fast-moving pace.

AIDS WORTHY CAUSE

All this—the full three-hour show, with general dancing afterward until the small hours of the morning, and a full-course dinner served during the evening—is yours for the bargain price of $2.50 a person.

Here is a typical letter from one such family, a letter taken at random from the thousands pouring in on the Christmas Basket Fund editor:

"I am writing for my mother to see if you will send us a basket at Christmas.

"My father died on October 1, 1937, and we have 11 children.

"We had a poor Thanksgiving, of course. I didn't mind but mother was quite blue because the little ones were disappointed when they didn't have anything extra.

"Mother works nights to support us but soon I'll be out of school and be able to help her out.

"So for my little sisters and brothers, please let them have a happy Christmas. There are three little ones here who don't even remember father, as baby is only 11 months and another 2 years and one 4. They're all to know him. So please make them remember a happy Christmas."

There's your chance, dear, this kid, and thousands of others in similar unhappy spots can Good-Fellow us, Santa Claus, leave them at this address personally.

If you would prefer, however, you can ask for the names and addresses of one or more destitute families and furnish the Christmas basket's to them direct.

In connection with applications for baskets—which should be addressed the same way—applicants are instructed to obtain the endorsement of their priest, minister, rabbi, children's teacher or the family doctor. This is very important.

NORMA JEAN ERDMANN
Lyric Singer on All-Star Program

Hawaii Becomes U. S. 'Gibraltar'

Army and Navy Join For Impregnable Defense Against Attack From Pacific

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—The Hawaiian Islands, spearhead of America's defense against attack from the Pacific, rapidly are being converted into a new Gibraltar, with fortifications believed as impregnable as Britain's famous "Rock."

Secret plans of the Army and Navy for vastly strengthening the Hawaiian defenses were revealed to International News Service today.

Enshrouded in strictest secrecy, the work has been proceeding for many months. It embraces a triple coordinated program of defense from air, sea and land.

While the Army-Navy plans were formulated jointly two years before outbreak of the Sino-Japanese conflict, significance was attached to the fact the work has been speeded up materially in recent months. The present program calls for a five-year intensive strengthening of Hawaiian defenses.

DANGER FROM AIR

The fortifications are being strengthened especially against the new menace of aerial attack, now a great potential danger because of the new high speeds and long cruising ranges of modern heavy bombers.

Long range anti-aircraft artillery batteries and nests of 50-caliber anti-aircraft machine guns are being installed at strategic points in the islands. Super-sensitive sound locators which warn of the approach of enemy aircraft and spot their range and altitude and anti-aircraft searchlights are part of the modern equipment.

Virtually all defenses, ammunition storage, chemical warfare equipment and gasoline storage tanks for fuel vital to the airplanes and tanks, are being put underground.

VAST ARMADA

To protect the Islands from air attack, a vast air armada is being assembled gradually in the Islands. So secret is this program that the number and types of planes cannot be revealed. Long range bombers, however, it may be said, form the backbone of this air defense.

To nest this air fleet, the army is rapidly completing a huge new air field at a cost of $17,000,000. The new Hickam field comprises 2220 acres, adjoining the navy's base at Pearl Harbor and extending toward Honolulu. There will be concentrated the headquarters of the Hawaiian air forces. The headquarters wing moved from Luke field, which the army plans to turn over to the navy, just a few days ago. The army will retain its two other fields, Schofied and Wheeler.

Four big double hangars are 90 per cent complete at Hickam field, concrete landing mats, railroad sidings, roads, docks and boat houses have been installed. A total of $7,720,000 already has been spent on the field.

CRATER FORTIFIED

New 16-inch rifles which will fire a one-ton projectile 20 miles, heavy mortars, seacoast searchlights and lighter artillery pieces for beach defense are included in the program. The huge volcanic crater of Diamond Head is being elaborately fortified. A network of modern highways has been built to facilitate speedy movement of troops, motorized artillery and mobile anti-aircraft cannon and machine guns to ward off possible landing parties.

Large areas of the sea approaches have been plotted for mining.

The Army has asked for a fleet of new high speed tanks. Defense plans call for use of the lumbering Old Wood war tanks now on the island as "pill boxes" at vantage points on the beaches.

Japan Education---Grim Game Goes On

War God Mars is the greatest of all teachers in modern-day Japan. Even the youngest of Nipponese boys seem to enjoy the grim game. Wearing cardboard shrapnel helmets and carrying toy guns, these youngsters dash forward to the charge. One day they may know the whine of a machine gun bullet that cuts the intestinal wall—multiplied 500 times to the accompanying agony of pain.

International News Photograph Service

Here's some more of the Sons of the Sun. Lying prone, they prepare to pick off the enemy "at 500 yards." Ten years from now when Japan gets another attack of growing pains these children will be ready to carry the Japanese flag to whatever territory the war lords happen to select as their prize of contest. But wait until the "little men" find out.

Educators Clash At Sessions Here

Hutchins Urges Removal of Adolescent Population From Labor Market

By FREDERICK A. SMITH

"Train high school pupils for business and industrial jobs."

"Provide education for American adults as England has done for her adults."

That summarizes the three topics foremost in discussions at the session of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, begun at Hotel Statler yesterday and continued this morning. It is the 52nd annual meeting of the organization and the attendance is the largest in the organization's history.

Celebrities in the educational world participated in the various sessions. Robert M. Hutchins, still youthful president of the University of Chicago was an afternoon speaker yesterday. At a night banquet seven presidents of universities and colleges were at the speakers' table.

OPINIONS CLASH

Clashing opinions enlivened general discussion following an address by Garland B. Briggs at a noon luncheon on the subject "Industry Looks to the School." The speaker is dean of the International Business Machines, Inc. school, at Endicott, New York.

Dean Briggs said:

"Do you realize that 75 per cent of the boys and girls in our secondary schools are being prepared for their life's work? Three out of every four of these students will rely upon the training which our high schools give them to prepare them to earn a livelihood, and to take their place in this rapidly changing world of ours.

"Out of the total of 23,000,000 pupils in our primary schools it is estimated that only 5,000,000 will obtain a secondary school education, and only 1,250,000 of these pupils will ever enter college.

"The question immediately arises: How well are the three out of four being equipped to earn a livelihood?"

MUST "SELL GRADUATES"

Dean Briggs said there was a marked demand at present for skilled labor. He said a survey had shown that 70 per cent of jobless young people interviewed would have difficulty in getting placed, owing either to personal shortcomings or to lack of training. In spite of these conditions, he said, our schools continue to stress preparation for college, and not industry. Speaking from a salesman's point of view Dean Briggs said:

"It is necessary for us to sell our graduates to the business men in our community—to sell them into those jobs for which they are most fit."

This met with vehement objection from Gustave A. Feingold, principal of the Bulkeley high school, Hartford, Conn.

"We should not sell boys and girls to industry. We should rather help them to sell themselves. I could not say to children that they must take one course or another. I would not arbitrarily send them into a course of training. I would not want to make slaves."

HUTCHINS SPEAKS

Wilfred F. Kelley, principal of South Boston high school, followed with a warning to business and industry.

"We hope business will show a pioneer spirit and go ahead," he said. "If business and industry fail to go ahead we may find the government itself have to step in and give employment to our young people."

Fay Huntington spoke on "A Possible Reorganization of Colleges and Secondary Schools." He said:

"Our task is nothing less than the tuteiage of the entire population. If we look first at the problem of juvenile and adolescent education we see at once that the economy of plenty upon which we have entered will require us steadily to raise the legal age for going into industry. One of the things we aim at in so far as the removal of the adolescent population from the labor market."

President Hutchins said that since we know there be no employment for the young we must see to it that there is education for them." He pointed out that junior colleges seemed at present to cause some confusion in university curricula.

At the night banquet the following presidents of universities and colleges were on the speakers' list: Charles Seymour, Yale; Henry M. Wriston, Brown University; James P. Baxter, 3rd, Williams College; William J. McGarry, Boston College; Fred Engelhardt, University of New Hampshire; John M. Munson, Michigan State Normal College. Arthur L. Gould, Superintendent of the Boston public schools was also a speaker.

Business, Social Leaders Aided Tobin Fight

Many of the city's best known business and society leaders gave their financial support to the candidacy of Mayor-elect Maurice J. Tobin, it was learned today with filing of his campaign contributions, totalling $33,755.75.

This amount was $8886 short of the actual amount spent in his election, which was $24,869.

In the same fight, former Mayor James M. Curley spent $36,074 and his committee still owes $8,986, according to the returns filed. Former Mayor Nichols received contributions of $18,185 and spent $18,179.

Among those who contributed to the Tobin campaign fund were A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University; Henry L. Shattuck, Boston city councillor and also treasurer of Harvard University; former State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., Alexander Whiteside, noted real estate authority on tax appeals and an authority in the Boston Real Estate Exchange. Others were Henry Hornblower of the banking firm; Mrs. James J. Storrow, widow of Boston's famous industrialist and philanthropist; Frances Parkman, Roger Amory, Mary A. Frothingham, Francis C. Gray, Quincy A. Shaw, Henry B. Cabot, Lawrence Coolidge and W. Cameron Forbes, former ambassador to Japan.

Curley contributed $3000 to his own campaign while five other members of his family gave $1000 each. Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty, Finance Commissioner Joseph Scolponeti and Dr. Martin F. Englan were among those who donated $1000 each.

Shots Riddle British Ship Seeking to Rescue Nuns

NANKING, Dec. 4 (AP)—The skeleton United States embassy here today warned its nationals it may be necessary to quit the city on short notice, perhaps tomorrow, and take refuge aboard the American gunboat Panay. Japanese columns driving on Nanking were not more than 60 miles away from bombedment.

American, British and French members of a committee of foreigners sent new appeals to their consuls in Shanghai in hope that the historic city would be spared.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4 (AP)—The British steamer Siushan was reported today riddled with bullets from an undetermined source while on a mission of mercy to Japanese-occupied Tsungming Island, near Shanghai.

The chief Chinese officer was killed. A sailor and several passengers were wounded.

After more than 200 machine gun shots had been fired, the little steamer's master, Captain N. McMillen, crept on his hands and knees under the spray of bullets to the wheelhouse. He reached the wheel safely and steered his vessel out of range.

British authorities have been striving to rescue nine French Canadian nuns who have been marooned on the island for about three months.

Among those aboard the 296-ton Siushan were the Rev. Father Adrien Bansseny, a French Canadian missionary, and E. B. Boothby, a British consular official.

British authorities said the Japanese, who have an air base on Tsungming Island, were informed of the voyage in advance.

U. S. DEFIES INVADERS

Japanese today demanded freedom to enter Shanghai's International Settlement after they had armed forces twice encountered foreign resistance.

At the same time a representative of General Iwane Matsui, the Japanese commander, demanded that settlement police prevent any repetition of the "victory march" attack on Japanese soldiers.

After a grenade thrower had scattered a column of 6000 Japanese soldiers on parade yesterday, a United States marine officer's protest forced a Japanese cordon out of the area guarded by American troops.

Earlier today French authorities blocked five Japanese army trucks from the French concession but finally permitted them to move supplies into the French area.

NANKING THREATENED

Japanese army authorities meanwhile reported their forces definitely threatening Nanking, China's evacuated capital, and Chinkiang on the Yangtze river about 40 miles east of Nanking. Earlier they had reported capture of Tanyang, on the grand canal about 20 miles south of Chinkiang.

Another Japanese column advancing on the Shanghai-Nanking railway was reported about 10 miles from Chinkiang.

Reports from Hangchow, chief port and capital of Chekiang Province, said Japanese were within 20 miles of the city and had not answered the appeals of foreigners to save the ancient cultural center from bombedment.

Japanese Seize War Supplies at Kiangyin

TOYKO, Dec. 4 (INS)—Mopping up as they advance toward Nanking, Japanese forces west of Shanghai have completed the task of capturing the strong Kiangyin fortress—one of the chief centers of the Chinese capital's far-flung defense system,—it was announced today.

An official communique said the Nipponese troops seized a huge amount of war materials when the forts fell after days of trifle artillery and aerial bombardment.

China Protests Italy's Action on Manchoukuo

GENEVA, Dec. 4 (AP)—China protested to the League of Nations today against Italy's formal recognition of Manchoukuo, the protectorate Japan carved out of Manchuria by a military campaign in 1931-32.

The Chinese government submitted a copy of a protest made in Rome by the Chinese ambassador to Italy.

Consular Aide Shifted

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—The State Department announced today that Milton K. Wells, of Oklahoma, vice-consular Valencia, Spain, has been assigned to Callao-Lima.

Store Explosion Fells Manager

George F. Bryant, 67, manager of a chain store on Harvard street, Brookline, was severely injured today when a heater exploded in the basement of the store.

Police said Bryant, who lives on Campbell street, Somerville, was investigating reports that an excessive amount of smoke was rising from the chimney when the blast hurled him to the floor. He was taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Sift N. H. Woman's Story On Missing Tax Cash

LACONIA, N. H., Dec. 4—What has become of $22,304.27, mysteriously missing from the office of Miss Martha E. Johnson, America's first woman tax collector?

That perplexing question today confronted state and local officials as they continued to probe Miss Johnson's story that she was knocked unconscious by an unknown intruder early Thursday morning.

To confirm her story, Miss Johnson showed a lump on the back of her head, under the hair. She is under treatment by Dr. E. J. Gage.

Meanwhile, investigators had bank clerks prepare a package of $22,000 in th size of bills Miss Johnson remembered. They made a bundle 19 inches thick.

Miss Johnson was found semi-conscious by an assistant, Miss Susie Lawrence, Thursday morning. Her recollection of what happened was hazy.

Planning Boards Meet at Tufts

Tufts college played host today to the fall conference of the Massachusetts Federation of Planning Boards under the direction of Secretary Samuel L. Conner of the Tufts Engineering school.

The general discussion will cover Chapter 211 of the Acts of 1936, which include the beautification and development of cities and towns, long range problems, and immediate problems. The members of town planning boards throughout the Commonwealth are expected to attend.

Speakers will include Professor Frederick J. Adams of M. I. T., Professor Arthur C. Comey of Harvard and Roger D. Swain of Concord.

After Miracle Stayed Death for Two on Highway

100 Face Death In Sit Strike

Timber Men Near Starvation

BURLINGTON, Ia., Dec. 4 (INS)—Declaring they are ready to starve to death, 100 timbermen in a "sit-down" strike today awaited word of their appeal to President Roosevelt.

The strikers appealed to the President after existing under almost primitive conditions for a week on fish, corn meal and lard.

A shortage of fresh water and tobacco threatened. They are obtaining water through holes in the ice of the Mississippi river.

L. S. Lloyd, spokesman for the strikers, said the men haven't had a full meal since last Sunday.

Study Plans to End Artery Auto Jams

Two porposals to eliminate traffic hazards at the Washington street-Northern artery intersection in Somerville are being considered by state highway commissioners.

The first is the $400,000 plan of the Metropolitan planning board for an overpass.

Denies Reds Back School "Boycotts"

Superintendent of Schools Arthur L. Gould today denied reports Communists were responsible for the spread of boycotts against school lunchrooms in Boston.

Declaring students had "a perfect right" to carry their own lunches to school, Gould said:

"There is nothing to investigate. The students are well behaved. I haven't heard a word about Red activities in our schools."

He said there would be no probe unless disorder occurred in connection with the student protest against the lunchrooms.

His statement was made in answer to a reported charge by headmaster Robert B. Masterson of Roxbury Memorial High School for Boys that "outside agitators" spurred the pupils to revolt.

Reds, the headmaster declared, are capitalizing on an incident that occured in Brighton and are fomenting discord in other schools. Sale of lunches in the Roxbury school dropped to one-fifth of normal yesterday. Only teachers patronized the lunchroom at Brighton high, the pupils eating home prepared lunches at their desks. A similar situation prevailed at William Howard Taft intermediate school.

A mild demonstration at Boston Public Latin resulted in only a few pupils boycotting the lunchroom, it was reported.

Hike in Blue Hills Covers New Area

Opening of organized hiking through a new section of the Blue Hills just opened by the Metropolitan District Commission is on tomorrow afternoon starting at two o'clock. The hike is sponsored by the recreational division of the MDC-WPA.

Hazry G. Higbee, staff naturalist of the MDC-WPA will lead the hike from the base of Great Blue Hill in Canton. This meeting spot in the Blue Hills reservations can be reached by Bus from Mattapan Sq.

Girl 'Stowaway's' Upset Covered Wagon Officials

Officials hoped today that a Hamilton matron and three girl "stowaways" would abandon the Hamilton-to-Marietta, O., caravan re-enacting the covered wagon journey of Northwest Territory settlers 150 years ago.

The woman, Mrs. Lydia L. Harraden of 569 County road, Hamilton, and the girls—Miss Edwina T. Wilber, 19, of 12 Bridge street, Hamilton, Miss Janet Barton of Ipswich and Miss Margaret Beers of Hamilton—got most of the applause along the route from Hamilton to Peabody yesterday.

The officials are "disturbed because their presence would defy the historical accuracy of the journey, which was purely a masculine venture. They were somewhat elated when the feminine contingent reported being footsore and weary and undecided about continuing the trek.

Another problem which did not confront the early pioneers—autograph hunters—is harrassing the marchers. Yesterday's progress was considerably delayed by school children and adults seeking signatures.

Bar Society Head Assails 'Too Many Laws'

Administrative commissions—a formal name for bureaucracies—are turning out laws and decrees so fast the average lawyer can't keep up with them.

This assertion was made by the president of the American Bar Association, Arthur T. Vanderbilt, in an address here before the members of the Boston bar at the City Club.

He stated that American lawyers know very little about the increases and changes in administrative commission, which, he said, was the most important development in the administration of justice in the United States.

Less than half the law schools were informed on the subject, he added.

As a matter of fact, he added, the average lawyer would have a full-time job keeping abreast of all of the new laws and decrees of the various administrative boards.

Montague Out Of National Golf

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4 (AP)—John Montague, whose golfing reputation was deflated recently by Babe Ruth, won't be invited to the national match play open championship here February 9.

But the Babe, who conquered Monty in informal matches, will get a bid along with 35 of the nation's top-notch players.

Cunard Liner, 2 Canadian Ships Here on Week-End

Only three trans-Atlantic and British West Indies passenger liners, one sailing and two arriving, touch the port of Boston over the current week-end, one of the quietest in some time.

Canadian National Liner Lady Hawkins, from Halifax, N. S., for Bermuda and the British West Indies, sails from Commonwealth Pier, South Boston, this noon, embarking local tourists.

Cunarder Scythia, for New York from Liverpool, Belfast and Greenock, is due to dock at Pier 3, B. & A. Docks, East Boston, at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Canadian National Liner Lady Drake, from British West Indies and Bermuda, for St. John, N. B., anchors below late Sunday night, docking tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock at Commonwealth Pier, South Boston.

Embarking in the Lady Hawkins, bound for St. Kitts, was Athelstan Peterson, of Providence, deck officer of the Clyde-Mallory Lines, with Mrs. Peterson, and their sons, Josiah and Philip.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Rahmanop, of Manchester, N. H., left for Demerara. Charles P. Case, of this city, vice-president of the New England Flour Company, with Mrs. Case, boards the liner at Barbados, on her return trip. On the return from Dominica, Chief Justice Wilfred Bolster, of the Boston municipal court, with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert P. Bolster and Mrs. Gardner T. Bolster, will embark.

Bermuda passengers were Miss Mary Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Meo and Miss Helen E. McKee. Dominica passengers included Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Clark, C. F. Nicholson and Malcolm S. Winslow. Dr. and Mrs. Eben C. Hill, of this city, sailed for Barbados. Hon. Charles A. Duclos, Montreal, justice of the superior court, and ex-mayor of Westbourne, Que., sailed for Barbados.

Court Vindicates Impeached Mayor

MARION, Ind., Dec. 4 (INS)—Mayor Clare W. H. Bangs of Huntington, militant foe of utility companies who twice went to jail for contempt of court for sponsoring a municipal light plant, today stood vindicated.

Circuit Judge O. D. Clawson, declaring that he believed Bangs had acted in good faith, ruled that the mayor could remain in office over the impeachment vote returned by the city council of Huntington.

Probe New Attack On Union Member

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 4—A new attack on a member of a labor union was probed here today after a coroner's jury inquest into the slaying of Pat Corcoran, labor leader, had recessed until Dec. 22.

Vern Stenvoren, of Minneapolis, Socialist party member and member of Local 38, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, was "brutally attacked" on his way to work at a knitting mill, police were told.

Find 50 Billion In Tax Exempt Securities

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (INS)—Treasury tax experts today informed the House ways and means tax subcommittee that the outstanding American tax exempt securities have reached the staggering sum of $50,522,000,000.

Eyeing the seventy millions in taxes that could be raised each year on the income from the securities, the subcommittee indicated that it is hopeful the Supreme Court will chart its course in an early decision.

Interest bearing securities of the federal government, either wholly or partially tax-exempt, have reached $39,548,000,000 the Treasury figures showed. State, county, city and local securities make up $14,854,000,000, while territories have $120,000,000 outstanding bonds.

"We have discussed broadly the abolition of tax-exempts through a constitutional amendment and likewise by statute," said Chairman Vinson (D. of Kentucky) of the subcommittee. "We have reached no agreement."

Charles Farrell To Build Theater

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4 (AP)—Actor Charles Farrell said today he would start construction of a winter stock theater at Palm Springs, desert resort, in January. He is negotiating for rights to a Broadway play in which he plans to star his friends.

Art Named 'Another Man'

International News Photograph Service

Here is the latest photo of Eleanor Holm Jarrett, mermaid of "champagne fame," whose marital affairs reached a crisis when her bandleader hubby, Art Jarrett, filed suit for divorce describing "another man." A short time ago Eleanor and Showman Billy Rose announced they would be married when they were sundered from their present mates. The announcement found Rose's present wife, Fanny Brice, cold.

Wife Ignores Rose Romance

Fanny Brice Silent on Jarrett Charges

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4 (INS)—Fanny Brice for the present wilfully ignore the amazing romance in which her husband, Billy Rose and the already married Eleanor Holm have vowed marriage.

The torch singing comedienne whose lament for "My Man" was famous before she met the diminutive producer of gargantuan stage show said "In view of the fact that there has been no discussion between myself and Mr. Rose (concerning a divorce), I do not feel that there is anything to say.

"And for other events which have been reported in newspapers (and there were plenty), they are distinctly no concern of mine."

Art Jarrett orchestra leader and husband of Miss Holm, was not so reserved concerning his views on the situation, once he broke his silence.

In a divorce action against the former swimming champion, Jarrett reviewed past events beginning with his wife's expulsion from the American Olympic games team last year, for a champagne drinking episode, to her recent associations with a fellow described as "another man."

Rose not long ago in an interview, urged Miss Brice to get a divorce without delay. Her statement, however, the first made since her husband and the former swimming champion vowed their love in a series of interviews, indicated she has no such intention.

Blaze in Everett Endangers 14

A 12-year-old girl's toothache today led to discovery of a fire and safety for 14 sleeping occupants of a three-family dwelling at 79 Vernal street, Everett.

Mary Giudice tossed in her sleep until her paining tooth could not be endured. She got up to get medicine and found the top-floor kitchen in flames.

The girl screamed a warning to her mother, Mrs. Jennie Giudice and the two then awakened other members of the family, Nicholas, 18, Anthony, 7, and Robert, 2.

Stumbling through the smoke, the mother and her oldest son pounded on the door of Mr. and Mrs. John Todaro, occupants of the second floor. They awakened and aroused with their children, Andrew, 17, Frank, 14, and Alfred, 12.

Before firemen had arrived the combined families had aroused occupants of the first floor, Mrs. J. Pecce and her children, Edward, 11, Alfred, 7 and Virginia, 9.

CIO-Steel Pact Due for Renewel

Both Sides Satisfied With Peaceful Handling of Problems

By B. C. FORBES

I understand that the agreement between the United States Steel Corporation and the CIO will be renewed when it expires at the end of February.

It has thus far worked extraordinarily smoothly.

In contrast with the many labor upheavals elsewhere, there have been no sit-down or other strikes since Myron C. Taylor made his famous deal with John L. Lewis.

It has been, of course, that the series of terrific defeats CIO suffered when it sought to bludgeon other steel companies into submission have acted as a deterrent to the starting of troubles in U. S. steel plants.

Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, is declared to have been entirely fair in his dealings with the steel corporation and, unlike heads of other CIO unions, has been able to exercise control over his fellows.

* * *

What are the main features of the agreement? Briefly:

The corporation recognizes the union as the collective bargaining agency for those employees of the corporation who are members of the union." No discrimination against any employee because of union membership. "The union agrees not to intimidate or coerce employees into membership and also not to solicit membership on corporation time or plant property."

Certain minimum wages are specified; also the eight-hour day, 40-hour week, with time-and-a-half for overtime. Employes of five years' service or more get one week's vacation with pay. Seniority is recognized.

One important provision is that "should differences arise, there shall be no suspension of work." A definite method of handling grievances is provided, culminating, in case no settlement is otherwise effected, in the appointment of an umpire chosen jointly by union and corporation representatives. "The decision of the umpire shall be final."

Union representatives are not paid for time they take off to attend to union matters. Handling and dismissal of employes is vested exclusively in the corporation provided that this will not be used for the purpose of discrimination against any member of the union."

All that does not sound as if the steel corporation made any abnormal sacrifices—except that it did break all steel industry precedent of modern times when it recognized an outside union.

* * *

The experiences of other corporations with CIO have been very different. Motor manufacturers have been subjected to scores and scores of sit-down and other strikes under their CIO agreements. Rubber companies have fared equally unfortunately. Interruption following interruption of production in constant succession.

These events have proved no helpful advertisement of the CIO indeed, they have done more perhaps than anything else to turn the public and also state authorities against CIO highhandedness. Today there is no doubt whatsoever as to how the American people stand in relation to labor lawlessness.

CUSTER'S LAST FIGHT — Set No. 9—Human Problem No. 54

In the days when the Wild West was really wild, General George Armstrong Custer, U. S. A., was a national hero. After winning his spurs as one of the Civil War's most dashing young cavalry commanders, Custer gained new glory as an Indian fighter.

Custer and his men, 260 in all, charged Sitting Bull's encampment, only to be surrounded and attacked by 3000 Indians. The result shocked the world.

Today concludes Set No. 9. There are only 5 more to be published, immediately after the contest closes the correct conclusions will be published. Right now one out of every one hundred contestants will win one of the hundred cash prizes . . . among this group of winners will be the great big success winner of $15,000.00, another will win $2,500.00, another will collect $1,000.00 and still others totaling one hundred will win amounts that total $20,000.00, all in cash. Christmas Trade Up This Week

Sales Improve Over Both Last Week And Year Ago

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Although holiday trade figures are lifting about a week later on the average than this writer anticipated, it is noteworthy that they are lifting despite the welter of poor industrial news. The Christmas shopping season is off to a good start and it is simple logic to look for a further denuding of merchants shelves resulting in an additional cut in inventories.

Dun & Bradstreet, top trade condition reporting agency, is the authority behind the claim that nearly all leading centers of distribution show a sales pickup this week. The gain over the previous period ranging from 1 to 4 per cent, which is some 3 to 12 per cent better than the comparable 1936 week. Wholesale trade volume shows about the same percentage improvement. All of which makes good reading for those of us who felt some weeks ago that the business side of things would feature the closing weeks of the year. And which adds substance to the thought that business is cauterizing its own sores and is not waiting on Washington's decisions. All of the more probable a brilliant snap back will result when real warmth replaces artificiality in the smile of sunshine government. For with inventories liquidated and prices attractive that the business men will need is assurance that he who risks a dollar in enterprise will be allowed a fair profit.

RESTRICTED ACCOUNTS OFF

The sharp decline in restricted customers accounts shown by the report of 13 member houses of the New York Stock Exchange provided the SEC and the Federal Reserve Board is undoubtedly due in great part to the easing of margin requirements. However, we are of the opinion some part of the improvement should be credited to the rise in prices. On November 30 the houses had 15.1 per cent of their accounts in the restricted category. This compares with a figure of 47.1 per cent in September. Psychologically it is also probably true that the decline in prices helped reduce the figure since unpaid margin calls must have resulted in forced selling out of accounts previously in the restricted class.

• • •

A sidelight on the above figures, and others now available on trading, that refuses to be downed, is the differences now and 10 years ago. The exchange supplies figures on member trading, short interest, condition of customers' accounts and a wealth of other statistical facts about itself that were unheard of not so many years ago. And in time traders and investors are not going to regard them as worth but learn how to use them to advantage.

BAILS CHEER OBSERVERS

If the action of any one group this week provided more cheer than his brothers the rails are the group in the opinion of many technicians. On our charts the carriers actually broke upward through the long down trend line extending from the August highs for the first time. This confirms the industrials' action of several weeks ago. The whole list, however, moved up in rather abrupt fashion this week and it may be that a bit of hesitation is warranted. But from a purely technical standpoint to the rise does not seem in the offing and setbacks should be held to minor proportions. More important resistance seems to lie from three to five points above Friday's highs.

• • •

Notebook: The coppers are putting up a stiff fight to cross the down trend line that has held them back for weeks . . . And the outlook is promising for their success . . . Of individual issues to follow, Texas Corp., International Harvester, on a figure chart, and most electrical equipments have broken out on the upside . . .

M'Cormack Will Preside Over Fete to Mayor

Congressman Chosen Toastmaster for Dinner Dec. 15

Congressman John W. MacCormack will serve as toastmaster at the testimonial dinner to Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield at Hotel Statler on December 15, it was announced today by Carl Dreyfus, dinner chairman and publisher of the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Congressman MacCormack is but one of a host of national leaders who will attend the affair, including many of the nation's mayors who have been associated with Boston's chief executive in the United States Conference of Mayors.

Speakers will be chosen from the many distinguished leaders who have said they would attend.

T. J. Flavey, Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley, Dr. John A. Foley, City Auditor Charles J. Fox, Frank W. Grinnell, secretary of the Massachusetts Bar Association, Roswell G. Hall, Mrs. Frank Leveroni, Dr. James W. Manary, superintendent of Boston City Hospital.

Joseph P. Manning, chairman of the board at City Hospital; John F. Gilmore, Jr., President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University; Joseph J. Mulhern, Budget Commissioner Walter A. Murray, Henry J. Nichols, Joseph A. Parks, Mrs. A. C. Ratshesky.

Edward M. Richardson, Frederick R. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston school committee; J. Burke Sullivan, Dr. George G. Sears, William H. Taylor and Mary L. Thompson.

Boy Killer Begins 5 Days Solitary

THOMASTON, Me., Dec. 4 (AP)—State prison medical routine placed pallid Paul Dwyer apart from his fellows today to await the allotted five days for reactions to pathological tests.

The 16-year-old confessed slayer of Dr. and Mrs. James G. Littlefield of South Paris started yesterday a life sentence imposed after his plea of guilt to the elderly country physician's strangling, Oct. 13, halted his murder trial in Oxford Superior Court.

Taciturn and unemotional, he underwent the customary entrance procedure. In five days, if medical tests prove negative, he will be assigned to the prison shops for work.

Described by Justice George L. Emery, who presided at the trial, as a "public horror," the case "broke" Oct. 16 in North Arlington, N. J., where police discovered the bodies of the couple in the automobile which Dwyer had driven through six states.

Hub Stays 9th Largest City

Adds But 466 in Year To Population

Though adding only 466 to its population in a year, according to federal census estimates, Boston retained its position as ninth largest United States city.

The estimates, based on the census bureau's enumeration formula, give Boston a total of 792,630, an increase of 11,422 over the official 1930 census figures.

Preceding Boston in the order of their size, are Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, St. Louis and Baltimore. After Boston come Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Washington and Milwaukee.

The country's population is estimated at 129,637,000, a gain of 828,000 for the 12-month period ending July 30.

Harvard Probes Portrait Cross

Harvard officials today investigated reports that the figure of a cross has appeared on the breast of the portrait of Bishop William Lawrence. The painting is in the dining hall of Leverett House.

Students and employes of the house said the cross is visible when the sun's rays strike the portrait. Bishop Lawrence was the seventh Episcopalian Bishop of Massachusetts.

Clue to Missing Hunters Sought

KEENE, N. H., Dec. 4—Searchers from two counties today continued the hunt for two Keene deer hunters, William Martin and Alexander Navisch, both 25, who disappeared Tuesday from their camp on Ashuelot pond at Washington.

Investigation showed that the men had not touched the food they had brought with them and that a canoe was missing.

Harvard Student Wins Vassar Girl

With their engagement formally announced and a June wedding planned, Miss Mary Armstrong, daughter of Mrs. N. S. Wyckhoff Vanderhoof of New York, and Robert Amory, Jr., of Milton are continuing their studies at Vassar and Harvard, respectively.

Daughter of Daniel W. Armstrong of New York, Miss Armstrong is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chapman Armstrong and of Mr. and Mrs. Dillam O. Taylor of 187 Beacon street.

Amory prepared for Harvard at Milton Academy. He is a law school senior. His clubs include the Spee and the Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1770.

Girls Have Last Laugh In "Date Quest"

Harvard students finally saw the light today and six beautiful Boston University co-eds were snickering.

The pretty girls, dressed in night caps and long overcoats, strolled around Dunster street "looking for dates" and singing "Silent Night, Holy Night."

After hours of pondering, one bright Harvard boy solved the situation, by the suggestion:

"Why, they must have been going through a sorority initiation!"

5590 Parkers Face Courts

Habitual parking regulation violators are finding that the new police traffic squad means business, it was revealed today.

Since the squad began operations a month ago, 5590 "repeaters" have been hailed into court for each offense, according to a report, which showed some motorists with as many as 11 appearances.

Boston residents were the worst offenders, with 2055 violations recorded. It was in this classification that the mark of 11 was set. Out-of-town parkers were listed for a total of 2895 appearances, with the highest number of violations given as 4.

Dewey May Aid State Crime Fight

New York's racket-busting Thomas E. Dewey indirectly may aid Massachusetts in a drive against crime.

The attorney-general's office wants to learn the methods of New York's famous prosecutor and intends to send an assistant attorney-general to study the measures by which the law has put some of Gotham's most notorious racket men behind bars. They wish to learn especially how Dewey protects witnesses and draws from them the secrets of the racket leaders.

Pastor Missing; Foul Play Feared

FULTONVILLE, N. Y., Dec. 4 (INS)—Police today broadcast a statewide alarm for Rev. William Barringer, 58, minister of the Methodist Church, missing since Monday.

Mrs. Barringer fears her husband has met with an accident or is the victim of foul play. Barringer is an insurance agent as well as a minister. He carried a substantial sum of money with him when he left home.

Maine Fishermen Rescued in Storm

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 4 (AP)—The disabled fishing boat, Merle-maid, found wallowing in heavy seas 45 miles off the coast, was towed into port today by the coast guard cutter Algonquin.

Manned by Lewis Johnson and Tom Parsons, Portland fishermen, the craft was sighted by a coast guard plane from the Salem base. Both men suffered no ill effects despite cold and a severe gale.

The Brighter Side

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., international copyright and e. right reserved.

Mr. Cholly Knickerbocker, the famous society editor, has just completed the somewhat involved task of separating the society sheep from the goats, so to speak. It has left Mr. Knickerbocker all out of breath. A long period of rest and recuperation on his Florida plantation is indicated.

Damon Runyon

Mr. Knickerbocker has herded into one corral what he calls the "old guard" of society and has graded this stock up in two different classes, A and B. We do not quite get the difference in this grading, but we presume the Grade A stuff is strictly high class, free from all blemish, and may be offered with a guarantee.

The Grade B stock is good, as we take it. Very good. Probably an expert eye could see no difference between Grade A and Grade B, but the difference must be there, or Mr. Knickerbocker would not have split it out as he has. Mr. Knickerbocker is nothing if not meticulous. Indeed, we have heard that his middle name is Meticulous—Cholly Meticulous Knickerbocker.

SLIGHTLY SPAVINED

We infer that Mr. Knickerbocker is just the same as saying to the customers of Class B:

"You will find it thoroughly satisfactory, and yet it cannot conscientiously be presented as the ultimate."

We get the impression that Mr. Knickerbocker rather suspects that among this stock may be some that is slightly spavined, or wind broken. In horse racing, we presume it would be run in high class claiming races.

However, we are not especially interested in either of Mr. Knickerbocker's "old guard." It is the bunch that he has shooed into another pen as "cafe society" that commands our attention. Cafe society, as we understand it, is made up of folks who infest the night clubs and restaurants, and Mr. Knickerbocker classifies this, too, as Grade A and Grade B.

We have carefully perused his listings under these classifications, and we have a T-bone to pick with Mr. Knickerbocker. We do not wish to charge him either with journalistic carelessness, or downright snobbery, but we regret to say we do not find a number of names that we feel belong.

NOTABLE OMISSION

For instance, we do not find the name of Mr. Butch Tower and Mr. Butch Tower has been a member of cafe society since before Mr. Knickerbocker was born. We guarantee that you will find Mr. Butch Tower mingling in cafe society somewhere around New York at this very moment, probably in Lindy's with a herring.

It is true that Mr. Butch Tower has a leaning toward the cafe society of Broadway, rather than of the cafe society of the East Side, into which Mr. Knickerbocker seems to have reached for most of his names, but surely Mr. Knickerbocker cannot differentiate his cafe society by a matter of geography.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Butch Tower comes from the East Side himself—a little lower down than the society cafes of the moment, but nevertheless the East Side. His first mingling in cafe society was as a youth around Mr. Nigger Mike's cafe in Chinatown, when Mr. Irving Berlin was a singing waiter on the premises.

SHOES IN POCKETS

Mr. Tower used to do a little "busking" for the society that gathered in Mr. Nigger Mike's cafe in those days, which is to say, he danced the light fantastic toe, finding his reward not only in the tumultuous applause of all beholders, but in the nickels and dimes showered upon him by his admirers. It was preliminary to a subsequent vaudeville career.

Mr. Tower always carried his dancing shoes in his hip pockets in the days of Mr. Nigger Mike's, for he never knew when he might be called upon to entertain in society, cafe or otherwise. One night when he was wending his way homeward to one of those hidden streets on the lower East Side, he was halted by an officer of the law and searched.

"You're under arrest for stealing a shoe store," said the officer of the law when the search disclosed the dancing shoes on Mr. Tower's person.

HE PROVES IT

"I didn't steal nothing," said Mr. Tower. "I'm a dancer and them's my dancing shoes."

"Oh, you're a dancer, are you?" said the lieutenant. "Put on those shoes, and let's see. Can you dance an Irish reel?"

"I can if you can whistle it," said Mr. Tower.

So the lieutenant whistled, and Mr. Tower danced, and the lieutenant scowled ferociously at the officer of the law and said:

Well, justice triumphed in this case, but after all his years since then in cafe society, Mr. Butch Tower is omitted from Grades A and B, inclusive, of Mr. Cholly Knickerbocker's lists, and we do not think this is very nice of Mr. Knickerbocker.

LET'S GO, BIG BOY! Here are seven members of the New England All-America boxing team which will compete in the Hearst All-America Eastern finals against teams from New York, Syracuse, Washington, Baltimore and Albany Monday night at the Boston Garden. Their target is teammate and heavyweight champ, Frank Chludinski, but this is in fun. Monday night they'll toss punches with everything they have.

By JACK CONWAY

LIKE CRUSADERS of old, the class of the amateur boxers of New York, Washington, Baltimore, Syracuse and Albany will move into Boston tomorrow for the Eastern finals of the Hearst All-America ring tournament which will be held at the Garden on Monday night.

Mr. Boston

There will be six visiting teams as Washington will be represented by two teams, one of white boxers and the other of colored youngsters eager to emulate the athletic conquests of "Bomber" Joe Louis.

Eight of the leading amateur boxers in New England will dig their feet into the canvas of the ring at the Garden on Monday night, and are confident they will succeed in turning back the rush of the invading boxers.

It is the first time that the great Eastern finals of the Hearst All-America ring tournament have come to Boston. Until now the New England finals was the high spot for this section of the country. Last year the Eastern finals were staged in New Yrk.

It is fitting that Boston should get the Eastern finals as this is the capital of amateur boxing. There is not any city in the United States or Canada that rivals Boston in the matter of interest in simon pure punch flingers.

The New York team will be the first to check in at the Hotel Manger tomorrow. By night all of the visiting boxers will be entrenched in this city, and prepared to give a fine account of themselves in their battles in the Garden ring.

There will be a huge crowd on hand to see the bouts. The immense seating capacity of the Garden will enable all who wish to do so to take in the Eastern finals.

Despite the large expense in connection with promoting such a monster show, the committee in charge of Monday night's bouts has offered this brilliant attraction at popular prices of 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65 and $2.20. It felt that every boxing fan in New England should receive an opportunity to see the amateur boxing greats in action at a price that is in line with his pocketbook.

Jimmy Foxx On Auction Block

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP) — There was plenty of smoke and a lot of fire in the baseball trading business today as the shopping center shifted from the minor league meeting in Milwaukee to the major league arena in Chicago.

Though the American League burned all the deals at Milwaukee, indications today were that the long-awaited swap of Brooklyn's Van Mungo was all but ready for official announcement. And when the eccentric Brooklyn fire-baller is traded—to any one of four clubs in the market—the National League is expected to do a land office business.

The best guess—and much of this player dealing is guessing—today was that the New York Giants or Chicago Cubs would get Mungo because those two clubs seemed to have what the undermanned Dodgers needed to rebuild their funny ball club.

GIANTS SELL SMITH

The Giants opened up a bit last night by selling southpaw Pitcher Al Smith to the St. Louis Cardinals and getting Catcher Tom Padden, ex-Pittsburgh Pirate, from the Cards. Padden will go to the Jersey City farm.

Dark horse of the player mart was Pittsburgh. When the disappointing 1937 season closed, Manager Pie Traynor said his club was ready to shoot the works with almost every player on the club. So far, no one has had a peep out of Pie, but he may swing a big deal around Paul Waner and Arky Vaughan any day now.

The Boston Bees also were doing a bit of fine gum shoeing and an important deal may be pulled by shrewd Bob Quinn.

The American League, apparently, was just beginning to trade. Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox certainly must do some shopping now because he has wound up with almost an entire lineup of right handed hitters, one of the surest routes to second division in baseball.

FOXX ON BLOCK

The Boston Red Sox, it is known, want to get a deal for Jimmy Foxx. Cleveland wants a catcher and is fairly certain of landing Rollie Hemsley from the St. Louis Browns; the Yankees, though sitting tight, would spend a pretty penny for a good pitcher, while the other clubs are after what they can get without too much of a sacrifice.

Actually, the major league meetings open Monday. Both leagues will hold separate sessions on Monday and Tuesday and joint meetings on Wednesday.

MILTON SCHLOEMAN JOE LUBIN

Wood Named Army Coach

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 4 (INS)—Capt. William Wood, former Army fullback, has been appointed head football coach of the U. S. Military Academy, succeeding Lt. Gar Davidson. Wood is now on duty at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Wood was one of the greatest athletes the Army ever had. After two years spent at Johns Hopkins University, he entered the academy and for four years, from 1921 through 1924, he won 12 letters in baseball, basketball and football.

Tech Beaten By B. U., 2-1

Goaler Carnrick Star Of Arena Game

Boston University's veteran ice sextet scored an unimpressive 2-1 victory over a surprising M. I. T. hockey six in the opening college hockey game of the season at the Arena.

Gerry Dearnsiers, midget Terrier wingman, was adequately hottled up by the hard checking Tech defensemen, but only after the Terrier leader had found the strings late in the opening period after taking a pass from Carvelli and rifling it by the Tech net custodian.

Pearson Named Tufts Captain

The election of Al Pearson to captain the Tufts varsity gridmen next year is a move which is highly acceptable to everyone on the Hill. Pearson is a real leader, and a fine right end.

A former Medford High athlete, Pearson is well suited to lead the Jumbos. He has no scholastic difficulties to contend with, and his popularity was proved by his election to Sword and Shield, and Ivy honoraries, and as a class officer.

Georgetown Star To Box at Garden

Jimmy Brady 'Rave' of Year in Capital Circles--Boston Banks on Bolvin And Chludinski for Titles

By WALTER KILEY

Jim Brady, a hefty, hard-hitting Georgetown junior, leads the Washington brigade as it troops into Boston Garden on Monday night for the super ring carnival being sponsored by William Randolph Hearst's Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Fellow students at the Hilltop college profese no fears for Brady's successes as he pits his brawn and ability against similar champions from Boston, New York, Baltimore, Albany and Syracuse.

The Capital City boasts its best personnel in several seasons. And Brady is best of this year's lot.

DAD BIGGEST ROOTER

He will be engaging in only his 20th amateur contest when he meets his opening opponent at the Garden on Monday. Yet critics bordering the Mason-Dixie line are making him the much discussed "rave" of the year.

The college boy, weighing 185 in ring togs, took up fighting much against the wishes of his parents. In fact he failed to let them in on his plans when he made his debut.

They called him hurriedly to his New York home where, after long and ardent pleading they finally relented.

When Brady was winning the All-Washington, All-America finals, Papa Brady was almost leaping out of a ringside seat in his unrestrained joy of son's accomplishments.

As a matter of fact, Washington sends two full teams to this great "pure" ringfest.

So enthused were its boxers that a separate journey was held for whites and another for the colored boys. A full team of each will be in Monday's Garden title events.

COLORED TEAM, TOO

Brady is by no means the whole Washington works. Buster Miller is a young featherweight, undefeated in 20 amateur starts, and is expected to parade into the Grand National All-America a week from Monday in the same roped arena.

District of Columbia boys fared well in the 1936 All-America national championships held at New York. Three gained semi-final sessions and two more went to the finals.

So it is from a lot which includes William Tapp, 112 pounds; Gilbert Mayo, 118 pounds; Carroll Wright, 135 pounds; Bobby Mathias, 147 pounds; Johnny White, middleweight, and Bobby Schwartz, light heavy, this city expects even better good fortune.

Washington's colored fellows are said to be the best to come out of that city in years. All are of championship calibre with exceptional knockout records.

Each of the five visiting teams will arrive in Boston tomorrow evening. They will be quartered at Hotel Manger.

All the competing cities insist their teams are tremendously improved over a year ago when the finals were held in New York.

Boston, however, with its New England representatives, rests content with its own champions and will be greatly surprised if it doesn't like a good share of the Eastern titles.

There isn't a glaring weakness in the Boston lineup, with its smallest and lightest member, Larry Rolvin of Providence, the fly weight, and Frank Chludinski of Hyde Park, the heavyweight, two distinct title possibilities.

They are Homer Robichaud of Worcester, 118 pounds; George Salamond of East Boston, 126 pounds; Richard "Ticky" Ford of Lawrence, 135 pounds; Frank Campanelli of Worcester, 147 pounds; Robert Conley of South Boston, 160 pounds, and Neil Doherty of Brookline, 175 pounds.

Unbeaten Brockton, Melrose Place Two Men On Official 1937 All-Scholastic Football Team

Sullivan and Saba, Keady and Kidd Win Posts

The Board of Coaches includes six prominent mentors in schoolboy ranks—Bill Broderick, Salem; Jim Mansfield, Haverhill; Fred Ostergren, Arlington; Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English; Ed 'Skip' Sherlock, Hyde Park, and Harry Downes, Quincy.

This Board, with the exception of Downes who was appointed this year, has been picking the official team for the past few seasons and in this time has compiled a fine record.

Practically all of the boys selected in the past have gone to college to become leading factors in their elevens.

DOWNES BIG HELP

The All-Board has covered an approximate 25-mile radius of Boston and looked over all angles completely.

School players from the remotest points of the North Shore to the far-flung areas of the South Shore have been discussed.

Every eleven, whether a championship organization or a weekly pop-over, had its share of representation by the coaches.

One note that was outstanding in the meetings of the board was the recognition of clubs of the South Shore. Before this year, the board had no "scout" from that section, but the appointment of Coach Harry Downes fills this need nicely.

The South Shore has come fast in football circles in the past two years and it won't be long before those teams are cutting slices of the state championship pie.

NO UTILITY PLAYERS

Brockton is the only team at present which now rates with the Suburban Boston schools but Quincy gave fair warning this year by tipping over Fitchburg, a top notcher, by a decisive margin.

Two changes were made in selecting the team.

Last year, the overflow of exceptional players forced the board to add a utility lineman and back to the club for the first time. This year the spares have been dropped.

It was ruled that the football team was made up of 11 players and that henceforth there would be no utility players.

The other change came in the composition of the Honorable Mention list. Previously, all players favorably mentioned at the meetings were included on the honor roll but this year, after picking the first team, the coaches' ballots determined the players. Four leading players for each position were named with ten boys forming the list of outstanding backs.

It will be noticed that the two leading undefeated clubs in the state, Melrose and Brockton high schools, each placed two boys on the team.

South Boston high school, city champions and another unbeaten team, placed one boy, and this lad was the only player in the city circuit to make the eleven. This was more or less expected as the only ranks had few outstanding players.

FEW STAR BACKS

A bigger surprise was the fact that no boy from the Merrimack Valley placed. Though the Valley is usually a hotbed for great grid players, this year the teams of that section were, with the possible exception of Lowell, weaker than in years.

Choices were, as usual, hard to make with one end post and one guard spot offering the most trouble.

The backfield came a bit easier as boys were eliminated bit by bit until the field had dwindled to four boys with an assortment of wickers, passers and runners.

Complaints from schoolboy followers are bound to come when they find that one of their favorites failed to be selected by the board but the coaches called 'em as they saw 'em.

They have seen the boys, not in a single game but throughout the season, they have talked to other coaches, and they have been looking for flaws and weaknesses of players—points which the average spectator would completely overlook.

That is why this eleven which the Boston Evening American Board of Coaches presents, is regarded by schoolboys and schoolboy fans as the Official Team.

TONY CARRAO, CENTER, SALEM—Playing with Bill Broderick's weakest team in years Tony stood out as the outstanding defensive and offensive pivot man in the state, beating out last year's choice, Harold Everett, by a large vote. Not only was he a center in the Witches' scoring maneuvers, but in the line he was the big threat. Pushing the opponents back with his long kicks, he could cross up the foes with an occasional pass. His tackles were described aptly by the word "fierce." He diagnosed plays carefully from his spot behind the line and was a great, inspirational leader for an inexperienced Salem team which almost edged out powerful Brockton.

DICK KEADY, GUARD, MELROSE—Though few spectators realized it, Dick was the spark plug and lead-off man in the majority of the Red Raiders razzle dazzle plays. Pulling out of his guard position, Dick would take the ball to begin the tricky plays with a lateral flip to one of the backfield. When a yard or two was needed for a first down, he would blast a hole in the opponent's line to allow the backs to pass through easily. Dick was one of the most likeable boys on the Melrose squad. This fact was borne out by his choice as co-captain of the team in the Arlington game—the most important clash of the season. He is the first son of a coach to be picked on an all-scholastic eleven. His dad, Tom Keady, coaches Lowell.

LARRY SULLIVAN, GUARD, BROCKTON—This 220-pounder was one of Brockton's reasons for going through the season undefeated. In the final game against Waltham, Larry opened such a gap in the enemy line that Frank Saba just waltzed through for a 75-yard run. Larry will probably be playing first string for the Boston College freshman team next season.

RAY VALAS, TACKLE, MEDFORD—The leader of the Mystic club was the big reason for what little success the Brooks' eleven enjoyed this year. Ray was untiring in the line as he smashed through opponents endlessly to throw rival backs for loss after loss. Added to this, he tried a bit of field goal kicking on the side attempting to get his team in the winning column.

STEVE LEVANITIS, TACKLE, RINDGE TECH—Steve pushed and battered his team to its best season in years by his fine all-round play. His powerful drive, backed by 195 pounds, cleared out holes for his backs that any boy could have walked through and his defensive play ranked with the best in the state. His choice was practically unanimous.

GEORGE BONTAITES— END, LYNN ENGLISH—George captained the English team that came last in the last stages of the season. His biggest asset was his fine play down the field under punts which clinched his position on the team. His defensive play was recognized early and was noticeable in the way the backs kept running plays away from his wing as much as possible.

ED RAIA, END, ARLINGTON—Ed was one of the cleverest pass receivers in the schoolboy ranks. He had the habit of finding an open space on the field to give his passer an easy target. Raia played great football for a 160-pounder. Raia will head for prep school before entering college.

FRED KIDD, BACK, MELROSE—Fred was not generally recognized as the great football player he is. He was considered probably the smartest quarterback in the schoolboy ranks as he called the plays for the championship Melrose team. His work was largely responsible for the team's undefeated record.

FRANK SABA, BACK, BROCKTON—On his accurate passing alone, Frank was due for considerable discussion by the board. His passes seldom failed to click for long gains but, added to that, he was a fine ball carrier. In the polling, Frank was given a vote by all members with one exception.

JOE McNULTY, BACK, LYNN CLASSICAL—The most serious triple threat among the schoolboys this season, Joe could do everything well. His passing, kicking and running made him a most logical choice. To coaches looking for college prospects, he would be one of the best from this year's crop.

DAN DILORATI, BACK, SOUTH BOSTON—This South Boston youngster is the only junior as well as the only Boston boy to make the team. He could carry the ball with the best of the schoolboys—his specialty being sideline groups, practically tip-toeing along the stripes for long gains as he outsped all tacklers.

Tigers Picked To Beat B. C.

Sextets Meet Tonight In Princeton

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 4—Boston College Eagles will open their 1937 hockey season here tonight against the potent Princeton six in the third match between the two colleges.

By virtue of their strong reserves including many experienced men from last year's squad, the Tigers will enter the ice battle decided favorites over the Eagles.

Mario Roccio, who played against the Tigertown ice men last year, will be back in the strings for tonight's fray.

A second line of Frank Lowery, flanked by Ralph Doherty and Bill Prior, will see service tonight, as will a third trio of Johnny Janusas, Ed Toomey and Bill Flynn.

You will find most of the leading professional boxers as well as their managers watching the amateurs in action on Monday night. It is one of those shows nobody wishes to miss.

Return of Ed Don George

THE RETURN of Ed Don George to the wrestling wars in this city will create additional interest in the mat sport. George will oppose Hans Steinke, German heavyweight, in a special bout on the Everett Marshall-Dazzler Clark card at the Garden on next Wednesday night.

George is still the top American wrestler, and many fans would like to see him regain the world's title which he lost to Danno O'Mahony. George is in fine physical condition, and only 30 years of age. He should be at the peak of his wrestling career.

I find there is also considerable interest in the tussle between Tor Johnson, gigantic Swedish heavyweight, and Chief Zaunooke. Johnson weighs 365 pounds, while the Chief is a playful little fellow of some 325 pounds.

Cronin Intends to Clean House

JOE CRONIN made it very apparent he intends to clean house with the Red Sox when he secured the hard hitting Joe Vosmik from the St. Louis Browns for "Buster" Mills, a second rate outfielder, Ralph Kress, an average infielder, and "Buck" Newsom who proved a bust as a pitcher with the Sox last season after coming from Washington in exchange for the temperamental Wes Ferrell.

The Red Sox have been carrying too much dead wood. One cannot win a baseball pennant with mediocre material.

There will be other drastic changes in the Sox before the season opens. Additional strength is needed in the pitching department. "Lefty" Grove is ready to crack up, while the other Sox flingers have been very inconsistent.

The Sox have an abundance of infield strength, but are weak in pitchers and catchers.

Eddie Collins once told me that pitching is 60 per cent of the success of any ball club. With this thought in his mind at the American League meeting in Chicago next week, Collins is certain to make a great effort to secure some first class pitching power.

Bob Quinn and Casey Stengel of the Bees may pull some startling trades at the National League meeting in Chicago. Quinn and Stengel are anxious to add batting power and color to their club, and would even consider trading some of their star pitchers if offered what they would consider a good deal for the Bees.

Betty Alden on Beacon Hill

Olivia Ames in White Chiffon As She Makes Her Debut

By BETTY ALDEN

THEY SAY history repeats itself everywhere . . . but it is especially true in the inner circle of Boston's exclusive society . . .

Twenty-six years ago this month Boston newspapers printed a story about a "brilliant debutante ball, held at the Hotel Somerset. The decorations of the large ballroom were very simple. Laurel was used to decorate the balconies and pillars and the ushers' dinner was served in the library of the hotel" . . .

ELLEN MOSELEY

This party, in December, 1911, was held in honor of Miss Caroline Fessenden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden of Chestnut Hill . . . and last evening the same host and hostess gave an almost identical party to present their granddaughter, Miss Olivia Ames . . .

Miss Ames' mother is the former Caroline Fessenden, who was guest of honor at the ball twenty-six years ago, became the bride of Oliver Ames, Jr., who was killed in action in the World War, and is now Mrs. Edward H. Bigelow . . .

The only difference in the setting of the two parties was that last evening's laurel garlands had been sprayed with gold, and the name of the room where the ushers' dinner was held has been changed from the "Library" to the "Mahogany Room" . . .

Mrs. Fessenden, Mrs. Bigelow and the attractive debutante received their guests at the head of the huge ballroom . . . a screen of feathery ferns, flanked by tall pedestals of deep pink roses made an effective and very formal back ground for the receiving line . . . while outside in the foyer a brightly lighted Christmas tree gave a festive holiday touch . . .

The guest of honor's gown was a diaphanous affair of white chiffon flecked at wide intervals with glistening brilliants . . . It was made with a full skirt, fitted bodice, and a becoming off-the-shoulder neckline . . . She wore a small white orchid in her hair and carried a delicate spray of palest pink orchids . . . Mrs. Bigelow's gown was of silver and white brocade, made very simply with braided shoulder straps . . .

Attractive Girls Crowd Ballroom

AMONG THE ATTRACTIVE GIRLS present, whose general appearance was far different from the belles of 1911 who attended Mrs. Bigelow's ball, were Frances McElwain . . . feminine sailing champion of the East, who looked very partyish in a blue and silver brocaded gown with orchids forming her corsage . . . Frances Williams tucked a festive wreath of silver flowers in her hair to match the flowers at the neckline of her ivory brocaded gown . . . and Marjorie Motley, whose fiance, Herbert Jaques, Jr., was an usher, wore a filmy black tulle gown with ruffles over the shoulders . . .

As for the debs present, Ellen Moseley's hoop skirt was most appropriate for the gliding waltzes which Maestro Ruby Newman and his thirty men interspersed with the popular fox trots . . . Her gown was a very long waisted model of lemon satin with a skirt made entirely of fine tulle ruffles spread out over an honest to goodness hoop skirt . . . Jane Pickman was one of the young moderns enthusiastically applauding the two piano entertainment of Fray and Braggiotti, which was the piece de resistance in the Ballinese Room during supper (from one to three A. M.) . . . Tillie Tuckerman and Jane Harte, two attractive North Shore debs, were greatly amused at the isolation of the stags during supper . . . for the young gallants who chose to attend without a girl were not allowed to be served in the Ballinese Room and enjoyed, instead, their chicken a la king in the Princess Ballroom . . . Harry Fessenden, uncle of the debutante, was a very cordial head usher and had loads of dancing partners among the good looking post debs present . . .

Polly Wardwell will be no stranger to Chicago society when she goes there to live after her marriage in February to Chauncey Hutchins . . . for she is spending two weeks there now as the guest of her fiance and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins . . . This evening she will meet a large circle of her future husband's family at the dinner dance which Mrs. Hutchins is giving for her debutante neice, Mary Gardner . . . Polly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Wardwell of Brookline who gave a tea to announce her engagement early in October . . . The couple originally planned to be married in April but have advanced the date of the wedding . . .

Junior League Glee Club Busy

THE FAMILIAR STRAINS of the best known Yuletide hymns, as well as a number of interesting and unusual Christmas carols, will echo through the rooms of various hospitals and charitable agencies during the next few weeks . . . The Junior League Glee Club has finished rehearsing and is now ready to embark upon its annual Christmas carol singing program . . . The solo performers with the glee club are Hilary Lunt, Ellen Bottomley, Mrs. Edward W. Drew and Mrs. Lothrop Dana . . . Louise Herman, Gertrude Wells and Elizabeth Osborne play the piano . . .

The first concerts on the schedule will be given Monday at the Robert Breck Brigham Hospital and the House of the Good Samaritan . . . On Thursday, December 9, the girls will sing at the Dorchester Home for Incurables and the Floating Hospital . . . The following week they will visit the Home for Aged People on Tuesday and the Massachusetts General Hospital on Friday, December 17 . . . Last on the schedule is a voyage down Boston Harbor to the Long Island Hospital on Tuesday, December 21 . . .

Voices in the ensemble are those of Mrs. F. William Andres, Mrs. Lewis S. Bell, Mrs. George H. Bingham, Jr., Ellen Bottomley, Anne Brown, Helen Blanchard, Edith Bradley, Margaret Capper, Mrs. A. ALTHOUGH POLLY KLOTZ has been a post deb for about two years, she still gets a great deal of pleasure out of debutante parties. She was a guest at a recent dinner party given by her debutante cousin, Beth Moir, in the Balinese Room of the Hotel Somerset, where her escort was Arthur Rice, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rice of Milton. Miss Klotz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Klotz of Wahan, who presented her to society at a tea dance at The Country Club in the autumn of 1935. She attended Beaver Country Day School and Wells College.

Bassett-Knight Ceremony in Wellesley

Janet Faxon Knight Bride of Richard Bassett Today

The wedding of Miss Janet Faxon Knight, daughter of Mrs Carleton Knight of Wellesley Hills, and the late Mr. Knight, to Richard Bassett, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Jr., of Pittsburgh, is taking place at 4 30 this afternoon.

The ceremony is being performed in St. Andrew's Church in Wellesley and will be followed by a reception at the Wellesley Country Club.

The bridal attendants are Mrs Peters Guy Crockett, Jr. (Mary Elizabeth Stanwood) of Boston Mrs Edward Wadsworth Grew Jr. (Molly Harlow) of Cambridge, Louise Gilman of Wellesley Hills and Barbara Marston of Newton.

George Pomeroy Bassett 3d, is the bridegroom's best man and the ushers will be Henry Bassett of Pittsburgh, another brother, J. Henry Patterson, 3d., of Wellesley Hills, Dana Tucker of Providence Charles Arenst of Pittsburgh and Carleton Knight, Jr., brother of the bride.

The bride attended Miss Allen's school in West Newton and the Mary C. Wheeler school in Providence. Mr. Bassett prepared for college at the Shady Side Academy in Pittsburgh and graduated from Harvard with the class of 1934.

Proparvulis Premiere Fashionable Event

And why shouldn't it with fond parents, devoted friends and innumerable curious ones crowding the John Hancock Hall last night for the rendition of the operetta. And Jeannette McDonald would not have had more appeal to the audience than did Marie Tiumona of Arlington, who sang, flirted and danced her way through the Nina role in a definitely professional manner.

To Alice McGrail went the average acting sunde. She admirably burlesqued her role of the society matron much to the delight of the audience. Martha Hurley did a fine job on some of her lyrical interludes. Myrtle Barry proved herself as much of an artist at ad-libbing as at dancing while Jimmie Hickey did an excellent job in providing the comedy relief, as the confidential secretary. And we don't forget to mention Ken Podem, who supplied the fine for the whole show at the beginning of the third act.

GREEN CHIFFON GOWN

Jacqueline Kent as the Firefly was the personification of all she has viewed on the stage. Her soft green chiffon banded with deeper green was a charming creation. Mrs. Joseph Ahern of the Guild of Infant Saviour attended the opening performance in heavy brown crepe. A shank chubby Providence Charles Arenst of Pittsburgh and Carleton Knight, Jr., brother of the bride.

Ken Kirby who is now Mrs John Mellowan, Jr., brought quite a party to the theater. Mrs Ralph Sears is the former Agnes Hughes, whose dark suit was beaded with ermine. Helen Hughes was in tailored black wool, while Virginia McGowan a gray wool was tufted in dubonnet wool.

Mr. and Mrs Frank Scout viewed the performance with their daughter Mary, who is welcomed on children all sides after her recent illness. Mr. and Mrs James Cash brought a pair of tickets to see daughter Mary model some furs in the last act and watched daughter Doris Burke about with cadet girls and ushers. Doris created her appearance as the ushers' chairman was a fetching gown of blue metal cloth.

Helen McCarthy, director of the candy sale, was delighted about the spectators' "sweet tooths". In smart raspberry crepe was topped by a little lame jacket. Assisting her were Mary McDonald in slim fitting frock of pink and Louise Kurz in black lace edged with white and Hazel Dunn, whose coral velvet was edged with gold, glittery leaves tucked in her coiffure.

Tea Will Follow Cornerstone Ceremony

Mrs Charles C. Cabot, president of the ladies committee of the New England Medical Center, will be hostess at the tea which will be given at the Boston Dispensary tomorrow immediately following the cornerstone laying ceremony for the new Joseph H. Pratt Diagnostic Hospital to be erected on Bennet street.

Mrs. Cabot will be assisted by Mrs. Robert W. Emmons and Miss Helen Jackson. Mrs. A. Warren Stearns, wife of the dean of Tufts Medical School will pour.

The laying of the cornerstone at 3 o'clock will take place on the eighty-first day of Dr. Joseph Hersey Pratt's career in medicine, it being named, and tomorrow also marks the completion of Dr. Pratt's first ten years of service at the Boston Dispensary where he is now physician-in-chief of the medical department, and at Tufts Medical School where he is professor of clinical medicine. Dr. and Mrs. Pratt as well as many members of their family will be present at the tea.

Unusual Sandwiches of Banana Or Butterscotch Breads

By MARTHA LEE

"DO YOU have some different quick breads?" reads a request. Yes, indeed, we do have some new varieties guaranteed to lend interest to the sandwich plate in any gathering.

Each of these can be quickly and easily made. They are festive enough for the coming holidays and entertaining appropriate thereto.

These breads have appealing flavors and are quite different in appearance. If you want to make them small and have an array of breads to please each and every member of the family

PECAN NUT BREAD

3 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup granulated sugar
1¼ cup chopped pecan meats
1 egg
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift four with the baking powder, salt, and sugar. Add nuts. Add beaten eggs to milk and shortening. Add to flour mixture, stirring only enough to moisten the flour. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven (350 deg F) 45 minutes to 1 hour. Makes 1 loaf.

BUTTERSCOTCH BREAD

2 cups old-fashioned brown sugar
2 tablespoons melted shortening
4 cups flour
1½ teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups sour milk or buttermilk
1 cup chopped walnut meats

Beat eggs, add sugar and shortening and beat well together. Sift four soda and baking powder. Add to first mixture alternately with the milk. Add nuts. Pour into greased loaf pans and bake in moderate oven (350 deg F) 45 minutes. Makes two 12 inch loaves.

COCOA BREAD

3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cocoa
1-3 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1-3 cups milk
4 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, cocoa and sugar three times. Beat egg and add milk and shortening. Stir into dry mixture, blending only well together. Add the ingredients. Pour into greased loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg F) 45 minutes.

BANANA NUT BREAD

1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup pureed bananas (3 large)
2½ tablespoons sour milk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 cups flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 cup chopped nut meats

Cream shortening and sugar. Beat eggs until thick and add. Force bananas through a sieve, add milk and lemon juice and combine with first mixture. Add flour sifted with baking powder salt and soda. Add nut meats. Place in greased loaf pan in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 45 minutes. Makes one 1 pound loaf.

BANANA BREAD

1¾ tsps. cream of tartar
½ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup shortening
3-3 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup mashed banana (3 to 3 bananas)

Sift the flour soda cream of tartar and salt together 3 times. Rub the shortening to a creamy consistency with the back of a spoon. Sift the sugar a few tablespoons at a time into the shortening and continue stirring after each addition until soft and fluffy. Add eggs at least well. All four mixture a few at a time. Beat well after each addition until smooth. Pour into well greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg F.) about 1 hour or until bread is done. Makes one loaf, about 9½x5½ inches.

'Envoy Extraordinary'

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

What Has Happened:

The grave issue of world war or peace was in the offing (though none seemed to realize it) when, one Fergus, a secret British messenger, was assaulted and robbed en route to Sir Ronald Matresser, who had returned to his lordly country estate after another of his long and mysterious journeys.

Dr. Andrews and Matresser, motoring late at night to the former's surgery to see Fergus, narrowly escape a smashup with a speeding auto.

Fergus is semi-conscious and does not know that the message he was carrying has been stolen. He mumbles about seeing a young woman bending over his coat in the hospital.

Dr. Andrews has a new patient: "a perfect giant of a fellow, a Dutchman" named Jan Van Westreene, who was slightly injured when bringing his yacht into Matresser's private harbor the night before. "The Dutchman proves such a marvelous shot during the invitation hunt that he is now the talk of the whole party.

Now Continue:

Minheer van Westreene stroked his sharply pointed beard thoughtfully. His blue eyes were fixed upon his host.

"You have not then I gather, the same tastes as your father," he observed. "If my memory serves me he was Ambassador at St Petersburg in the old days and after that at Rome."

"My father was considered a brilliant diplomat," Matresser replied. "He was also a considerable figure in the political world, which I could never be. I had a brother with brains who might have gone in for that sort of thing, but we lost him during the war."

Van Westreene rose to his feet. He waved to Yates who rose to his feet from the [illegible]

"What about that, my astute secretary!"

"I think that before he leaves," Henry Yates replied, "he will give us something to think about."

Nothing in the man's natural good breeding and [illegible] appearance suggested that he had ever been [illegible] Matresser's guests. Rather did he appear a fastidious member of the English upper middle class. He had arrived in the early morning in a [illegible] and had been received by Matresser himself in the library. He seemed to be wearing a [illegible] and his first words were a request for a bath and breakfast. Afterwards he had asked for a few minutes' conversation with his host, and Matresser had brought him to the library. Yates had been summoned from the study.

Scientist's Text Announced

A lesson-sermon on the subject "God the Only Cause and Creator" will be read tomorrow in churches the world over. The Golden Text announced was

"The Heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handywork. There is no speech or language, where voice is not heard."

"Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is the Lord his God, which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth forever . . . The Lord shall reign forever, even thy God, O Zion, unto all generations. Praise ye the Lord."

Also included is the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The scientific divine creation declares immortal Mind and the universe created by God. Infinite Mind creates and governs all, from the mental molecule to infinity. This divine Principle of all expresses science and art throughout His creation, and the immortality of man and the universe."

THE POMERANIAN
No. 11 of a Series

The Pomeranian at its name implies originated in Pomerania. Probably its forebears were the large working breed known from the round and lop-eared sledge dogs. These dogs were originally called the Spitz.

The general appearance of a typical Pom is that of a compact, short coupled dog with marked activity, standing on tiny, cat like feet, with profuse, stand-off coat, full to head with small well carried ears and keen expression. It scales the weights at about four pounds . . . is a fruity member of the toy family. Its colors are black, brown, chocolate, red, orange cream orange-sable, wolf-sable, beaver, blue, white and part colors.

Hollywood Acts To Curb Radio Gossips

Commentators Must Have Approval of Will Hays' Office

Special to Boston Evening American

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 4—At the drive to purge the airways of trivial gossip about Hollywood gained momentum today, first definite steps in keeping programs free of scandal mongering were taken.

Thirty-one cards have been issued to Hollywood commentators and their assistants by the Motion Picture Producers Association. These cards are a sanction of the association and will permit entrance to the studios.

Regulation of news will be a dedby the studios. Each has appointed a man to work with the commentators and to check all programs to see that they are free from nuisliming about the industry and its personalities.

CHECK BY HAYS'

In the future, news commentators will be forced to clear through the Hays office before they are apto gain admittance to the studios.

Petty said that he now plans to confer executives of broadcasting companies of networks, and independent radio stations, assuring their cooperation in cleaning up the gossip of commentators.

JOINS PROTEST

David L. Loew, producer of Joe E. Brown comedies, today added his voice to the campaign against the slanderous remarks of certain Hollywood radio commentators in a denunciation of their "muckraking."

"This campaign is just and good and all right thinking people will enlist in its support," he said.

"Commentary over the air about Hollywood has its place, but only when the principles of decency are recognized. Air satisfiers are no better than ordinary satisfiers. As a matter of fact, they are much worse because many of the tales they tell are untrue."

Commenting on the defenseless ness of the people against these attacks, Loew said:

"As soon as any one in the industry takes offense at the slanderous and imagined stories about themselves, it is immediately pounced upon as a tacit admission of guilt.

LACK GOOD TASTE

Perfume Display On at Hovey's

Over a hundred and sixty years of experience in expressing feminine beauty in fragrance by the firm of Houbigant is being readvised today and all through next week until the 11th at C. F. Hovey Company in a "Historical Pageant of Perfumes."

Windows done in lovely interpretations of the spirit of their world-renowned fragrances, an exhibit of historical treasures connected with the manufacture of perfumes, clients through the decades, and special presentations of Houbigant perfume, make Hovey's a gala place to visit.

There are fascinating documents and keepsakes of the queens, princesses and great ladies who since 1778 were enhanced by the distinguished flower perfumes in the Houbigant factories. There are educational displays of all the precious stuffs and intriguing processes of making perfume.

And the modern trend is pointed out as leading toward the dreamily simple flower fragrances, like the true lilac-in-the-rain perfume which features its alluring window designed by the famous artist Millard Sheets.

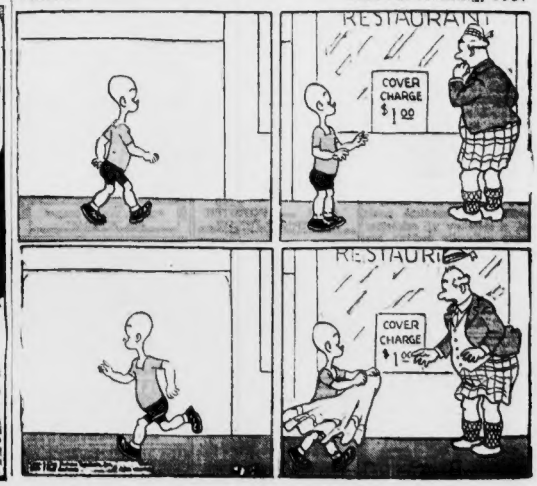
HENRY



And For Nothing, Too!

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

WHEN AN EXCLUSIVE STORY comes the hard way," the lucky reporter responsible for predicting it breathes a heave, not a sigh, of relief . . . For more than fourteen months, your correspondent has been perched on the end of a limb, with bad breaks near the trunk end of the limb threatening to let him down with an awful ker-plunk . . . The story was that Joe Vosmik was going to become a member of the Red Sox . . .

In October, 1936, this space predicted that Vosmik was coming to Boston . . . Then, in "Boston After Dark" of January 18, this year, the oversigned wrote "Joe Vosmik will yet come to the Red Sox." That was after Trader Rogers Hornsby had negotiated for the services of Vosmik in the trade which sent Julius Solters to Cleveland . . . From that same column: "A Red Sox pitcher will go to St. Louis and so will another bundle of cash." . . . Newsome turned out to be the pitcher, and if anyone thinks that St. Louis took Newsome, Mills and "Red" Kress in exchange for Vosmik, without Red Sox cash sweetening the deal, this column begs politely to disagree . . . In signing off on baseball in that January column, "Anyway, Vosmik is coming to the Red Sox," was the parting reminder . . .

Two days ago, your reporter learned that the Red Sox management was determined to acquire Vosmik or Beau Bell from St. Louis, with St. Louis equally determined to retain the services of young Bell . . . So, going to the precarious end of the well-known limb, your devoted envoy repeated "When Vosmik comes to the Red Sox, etc, etc. etc." . . . So . . . A thousand greetings and wishes for your success, Mr. Vosmik . . . And, a sigh of relief that sounds like a siren.

CIVIC SUGGESTION

Maybe the wrangling in Scituate about those historic elms would be minimized if a consultation of tree surgeons was held at once . . . An unofficial diagnosis which reaches this desk holds that the elms are so riddled by parasites and ravaged by senility that their life expectancy is less than two years.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

Reading that there are more than 30,000,000 automobiles on the highways, Bill Thatcher, the newspaper sage commented: "And laid end to end what do they signify? Just a Sunday afternoon." . . . The score of "Between the Devil," which opens Tuesday at the Shubert, is reported these few days ahead as the most brilliant effort of Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, who have collaborated for nine years on the same number of hits.

And speaking of collaborators, Dr. Joseph Maher of the St. Elizabeth's Hospital staff and Alice Hennessy, of the same institution's nursing personnel, are ready to name the day . . . Your envoy will never forget their combined services one morning in mid-June when his pulse was a roller-coaster, his temperature too high to be mentioned and his respiration something to forget . . . Lovely little Alice has the ring, and the good doctor never made a wiser diagnosis.

Tomorrow's Christmas Basket Fund show at the Bradford Penthouse will be the best entertainment "buy" of the season . . . Dinner, three hours of entertainment, excellent music and a sideshow of celebrities money ordinarily couldn't buy evaluates the occasion at twice the cost . . . And the proceeds will go to spread a little Christmas cheer to heartbsides which will be barren enough at best.

By PEGGY DOYLE

Currently showing at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters, it combines superlative acting, eloquent writing and superb direction. Charles Boyer's Napoleon is articulate with the fabulous personality of one of France's historical figures. If he dominates the story, it is because he IS Napoleon, whose name is a synonym for power. As the Countess Walewska, Greta Garbo gives one of her most sensitive, heart-shaking performances. She is everywoman in love and, least demonstrative of screen lovers, she is able with her tenderclances and her warm, throaty tones to speak a world of love. Her eyes and her voice can be more caressing than the most impassioned embraces of the sultriest screen sirens.

M-G-M is reported to have spent $3,500,000 in the making of "Conquest," a financial consideration that might well be but one of the fortunate augury. Despite the staggering aggregation of troops for the battle scenes, the splendor of the palace and ballroom scenes and the magnitude of the whole historic scene, Garbo and Boyer, by the simplicity and genuine ardor of their performances, give us a romance that is heartbreakingly real.

Unforkettable are such scenes as the initial meeting of the two, the lively Polish countess mutely heroworshipping Napoleon, fascinated; her commanding dignity that shatters his own when she discovers her idol is clay-footed; the spirited discussion between Napoleon, just dismissed definitively by the countess, and her slightly mad sister-in-law, played effectively by Maria Ouspenskaya; the first meeting between the countess and Napoleon's mother, who is antagonistic; the gaiety of the two lovers during the dancing season.

Then there are such superb scenes as the heartbreak in the countess' eyes when, just as she is about to confide that they are to have a child, learns from Napoleon's own lips that he is arranging a match between the Hapsburg Maria-Louisa and himself; Walewska's selflessness tendencies when having brought their son, Alexandre, to Elba to cheer the exiled conqueror, she tries to assuage his disappointment because they are not of Maria-Louisa and his rightful heir.

• • •

Magnificent support is given Boyer and Garbo by Reginald Owen, as the scheming Tallyrand; Henry Stephenson, as Garbo's aged husband, Count Walewski; Leif Erickson, as the countess' beloved brother, Paul; Henry Gordon, as the Polish patriot, Prince Poniatowski; Alan Marshal, as Captain D'Ornano; Dame May Whitty, as Napoleon's mother.

Clarence Brown, one of Hollywood's ace directors, has given "Conquest" flawless direction. His is a significent directorial triumph, for he has managed to tie together the far-flung, almost incredible episodes in the life of the power-crazed Emperor Napoleon and give us a believable, heart-stirring picture.

Coming to Shubert

Jules Epailly and Adele Dixon, in a scene from "Between the Devil," which will have its American premiere at the Shubert Tuesday night.

Three Stars In Musical

Opening an engagement at the Shubert Theater on Tuesday night, "Between the Devil" will bring to the Hub stage the reigning favorites of the English theater, Jack Buchanan, Evelyn Laye and Adele Dixon.

Written by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, the duo of talented young men responsible for "The Band Wagon" and other great musical hits, "Between the Devil" has been staged and directed by Hassard Short, whose productions of "Fredrika," "As Thousands Cheer" and "The Great Waltz," among many others, have given more genuine beauty and revolutionary technical advancement to the present-day stage than can be credited to any other single person.

"Between the Devil" unlike the average lavish musical comedy, boasts a tightly woven story, interspersed with musical numbers and interludes. Interpreted by a cast at home in drama as well as song and dancing, it tells an engrossing story of a charming blackmailer who could be completely happy in the Other Dear Charmer Away.

Last Four Weeks For Plymouth Hit

Beginning Monday evening that record-breaking laugh-maker "You Can't Take It With You," will enter the last four weeks of its phenomenally successful engagement at the Plymouth. This means that the Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman comedy will still be here for the Christmas and New Year's Eve performances, the run coming to an end on Saturday night, January 1.

'Angel' Heads Bowdoin Bill

"Angel" starring glamorous Marlene Dietrich comes to the Bowdoin this week through Tuesday. Her list of players assisting in portraying the problem of a neglected wife finding romance outside her home includes Herbert Marshall, Melvyn Douglas and Edward Everett Horton.

Composer Hill Given Ovation At Symphony

His New Work Given First Performance By Orchestra

By RUTH MARSTERS

Two symphonies, a Mozart concerto and the Respighi transcription of Bach's C minor Passacaglia and Fugue for Organ proved stimulating fare at yesterday afternoon's concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The audience was of capacity size as is usual at these concerts and warm in its reception of Dr. Koussevitzky, returned after a week's absence.

Of the two symphonies, the one written by Haydn in 1793, the other by Edward Burlingame Hill in 1936, it may be safely said the latter suffered through proximity with the other.

• • •

The Haydn symphony was one of those commissioned by Solomon for Haydn's second London visit—one in E flat No. 99. The Hill symphony was the third to be written by the distinguished Harvard professor, and was given its first performance in yesterday's concert.

Professor Hill was in the audience and came upon the platform at the conclusion of the performance, a gesture sure to win applause which was both gratifying and deserved.

For Professor Hill's Third Symphony in G major, Op. 41 is marked by the fine workmanship and freshness which generally characterize his compositions.

It is without program. The three movements are Allegro grazioso ma con brio, Moderato ma non troppo lento and Allegro energico.

• • •

Dr. Koussevitzky brought the program to a magnificent climax with Bach's massive work. The orchestra was in fine form throughout the concert. It was one to be remembered.

The same program will be repeated in this evening's concert in Symphony Hall.

Clark Gable Faces Busy Year in Films

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor, International News Service

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 4—It's a question whether Clark Gable goes into "The Sea Wolf," Mervyn Leroy's first for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, or "Gone With the Wind," David Silznick's initial M-G-M movie.

He will star in both, but whether he does the two-fisted he-man described by Jack London or the more publicized Rhett Butler first, is a matter that depends upon how soon either story is ready.

"The Sea Wolf" now definitely is Mervyn's first when he moves to his new headquarters in February, was made by First National with Milton Sills and earlier with Hobart Bosworth, and it always had real audience appeal. Clark, by the way, should be plenty busy next year. In fact, he has already started by begining work on "Test Pilot" with Spencer Tracy and Myrna Loy, also Lionel Barrymore when the latter returns from England next week.

Several years ago Warner Brothers made a picture called "Three on a Match," which did so much toward establishing Bette Davis, Ann Dvorak and Joan Blondell as individual stars that the studio believes the idea is worth repeating a similar story for Gloria Dickson, Lana Turner and Mary Maguire.

"Broadway Girls" is the title of the new film that will give the three Warner debutante starlets an equal break. I'm particularly anxious to see Gloria Dickson a lighter, gayer role than she played in "They Won't Forget." Lew Seiler directs and the picture starts immediately.

Chatter in Hollywood: Latest development on the William Keighley-Beverly Roberts romance is that he will go to Honolulu on the Clipper alone, returning here in January to marry her. The inside on his leaving "Robin Hood" when it was two-thirds completed was an argument over a production matter on which he and the studio could not agree. Michael Curtiz is finishing direction on the picture. Keighley returns to Warners to make another one as soon as he gets back from Honolulu. He and Beverly will honeymoon later in Europe.

A fine or two: No honeymoon for Virginia Bruce and J. Walter Ruben until after Christmas because they want to remain here for the holidays with little Susan Ann Gilbert. But December 26 they're motoring to Virginia where they'll be the house guests of Mrs. J. H. Whitney . . . Walter Huston will play the George M. Cohan role of President Roosevelt in the local footlighting of "I'd Rather Be Right" which is a break for our local stage.

Lansing Reed's Last Rites Held In New York

Counsel for Big Firms Was Son-in-Law of Bishop Lawrence

Funeral services for Lansing P. Reed, 55, son-in-law of Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts, were held this morning at the Presbyterian church, Madison avenue, New York.

Reed was a well known New York lawyer numbering among his clients J. P. Morgan & Company, International Telephone and Telegraph Company; Guaranty Trust Company; Standard Brands, Brown Harriman and Company and a host of others.

He was the son of the Rev. Edward Reed of Holyoke and was graduated from Yale College in 1904 and Harvard Law School in 1906. He was the husband of the former Ruth Lawrence of Boston.

MRS. LEMIRA LEONARD

Funeral services for Mrs. Lemira H. Leonard, 98, oldest resident of Braintree, will be held today from her home, 37 Central avenue, South Braintree.

The Rev. Forest R. Brown of the South Congregational Church will officiate and burial will be in Union Cemetery, Brockton.

Mrs. Leonard was born in Taunton. She was the widow of William E. Leonard and had lived in Braintree for half a century. She leaves a daughter, Miss Beatla Leonard.

EDWARD D. CONANT

The funeral of Edward Davis Conant, 91, for 50 years in the Roston real estate business, will be held Monday in Eliot Church chapel, Newton. He died at his home, 84 Park street, Newton.

He was born in Worcester, was educated in the schools of that city and for a time was engaged in the hardware business before coming to Boston in 1882. Since that time he had been actively engaged in the real estate business, having just completed business arrangements for rent for a few months before he died.

He leaves his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Alice C. Emery of Weymouth Heights, and two sons, Lewis C. of Buffalo and Benjamin W. of Berwyn, Ill.

MRS. SARAH A. ROACH

AMESBURY, Dec. 4—The funeral of Mrs. Sarah A. Roach, 61, will be held Monday with a solemn high mass in St. Joseph's Church.

She died of a heart attack after collapsing during a shopping trip.

Mrs. Roach was born in South Berwick, Me., and was the widow of Lawrence Roach. She leaves two brothers, William and Daniel Nelson, and two sisters, Miss Jennie F. Norton and Mrs. Mathilda Taylor.

ALVA A. CARL

FALMOUTH, Dec. 4—The funeral of Alva A. Carl, 60, member of the board of fire engineers, will be held tomorrow from the Congregational Church, with the Rev. Ralph K. Long officiating. He died while talking with friends in a store, just before he was to attend a meeting in the Central fire station.

Carl was a member of the Mid-Osboro Lodge of Elks and manager of the Falmouth American Legion band. He leaves his wife and three children as well as two children by a former marriage.

Guess Weather; Win Awards

Cash Prizes Await Best Prophets In Contest

The weather, like the world, is always with us. The difficulty is to tell ahead of time what the weather's going to be like.

May be you have worked out a system of prognostication—weather forecasting, in simpler English. If you have, here is a chance to win an award for your ability.

A weather guessing contest inspired by Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Hurricane," motion picture now showing at the Colonial Theater, means cash prizes for those who see the film for the best weather guessing.

MAKE YOUR GUESS

If you think it will rain or snow; if you are sure the skies will be clear or cloudy; if you predict the mercury will soar or drop; send your predictions to the "Hurricane" Editor, care of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

Remember the test is the most complete prediction, and it should include such things as probable time of storm, temperature and direction of the wind, in addition to whether it will be fair, rainy, snowy, etc.

The five best daily averages for the duration of the contest will receive cash prizes of $2 each.

GREAT FILM SCENE

Praised by critics as one of the best pictures of the year, "The Hurricane" stars Jon Hall and Dorothy Lamour, both beautiful in addition, it presents such outstanding favorites as C. Aubrey Smith, Mary Astor, Thomas Mitchell and Raymond Massey. John Ford directed.

You will be thrilled by the 15-minute realistic hurricane that is shown as the climax of the production.

Today's Weather Contest Winners

JON HALL DOROTHY LAMOUR

Palestine to Get New Governor

LONDON, Dec. 4—Sir Harold Alfred MacMichael, African administrator, today prepared to take over the job as high commissioner and commander-in-chief for Palestine and high commissioner for Trans-Jordan.

He succeeds General Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, who resigned because of poor health. The appointment is effective on March 1.

MacMichael has been governor and commander-in-chief of Tanganyika territory, East Africa, since 1934. He faces the task of restoring peace to the Holy Land, where Arab and Jewish conflict has produced two years of violence.

One Less Blue For Mary Blue

Divorces Husband, Wins Alimony

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4—Mary Blue had a divorce today and her comedian-husband, Ben Blue, had some advice about saving money for a rainy day.

Blue will pay Mrs. Blue $600 a month for the support of herself and daughter, Jeanne, 14, in addition he agreed on advice of the court, to put $100 a week into a trust fund until it reached $30,000 to insure payment of the alimony.

Lloyd Like Fireman

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Lloyd George declared war on six countries in his Thursday speech. Today he's making a speech exchanging prisoners.

We thought Lloyd had retired sometime ago but he must be like the fireman who took his red hat and rubber boots to the old folks home.

He is in favor of fighting today instead of tomorrow. He will probably plead self-defense, like the sound taxi passenger who put his fist through the non-shatterable glass. His plea was that he didn't swing at the windshield wipers until they swung at him.

Walsh Hits Ban On Jute Imports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Senator Walsh (D.) declared today that senators from wool and potato producing sections will fight any amendment to the farm bill limiting imports of jute.

Walsh stated the amendment, proposed by Southern senators, would increase the cost of jute production and deal "a serious blow to the jute manufacturing industry of Massachusetts."

Walsh contended that cotton bags could be used by the wool and potato industries. He said that while jute was not manufactured in the United States, products from it were made here.

Police Christmas Trees Are Planned

Police Commissioner Timilty has an idea which he hopes will result a popularizing Boston policemen with children.

If the commissioner's scheme is carried out, every police station in the city will have a Christmas tree. Funds are to be raised through solicitations of store keepers in each community. In a letter to all captains, the commissioner set a limit of $1 each on donations.

Lighting Expert Peers Into Future

According to O. P. Cleaver, lighting expert of the Westinghouse lamp division who spoke at the meeting of the New York section of the Illumination Engineering Society in Bates Hall, Northeastern University, the

EVENING NEWSPAPER

SATURDAY,
DECEMBER 4, 1937

There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death.—Proverbs XVI, 25.

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. George H. Spencer, Episcopal minister, Boston. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Willard S. Smith, Baptist Church, East Jaffrey, N. H.

The Editor Says:

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, able chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, faced facts and talked common sense when he appeared before the House Merchant Marine Committee in Washington.

"It must be pointed out," he declared, "that we are maintaining, as a defensive measure, one of the largest navies in existence. That navy would be greatly handicapped without a plentiful supply of efficient, modern merchant vessels."

But many ships are neither efficient nor modern, and Mr. Kennedy did not hesitate to say so. He continued:

"Present conditions are very unsatisfactory. Order and discipline have largely disappeared. Passengers are frequently subjected to insolent and impertinent treatment; vessels have been too often delayed by the use of the 'sit down' at the last minute before sailing time."

This, he frankly said, explains why disgusted shippers and worried travelers have turned to the vessels of other nations.

Senators and Representatives ought to have the courage to share Mr. Kennedy's determination to make the Merchant Marine a NATIONAL ASSET. It has been too long a DISGRACE.

If we are to enjoy prosperity in peace and security in war, we cannot continue to blunder as we have been blundering for years while other countries, taking advantage of our apathy and inefficiency, have built up strong and profitable commercial fleets.

"APPLY THE BRAKES"

—says Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., to Secretary of State Hull, and all New England, weary of the down hill ride of recent months, echoes enthusiastic approval.

Specifically, Mr. Lodge asks Mr. Hull to postpone the making of ADDITIONAL trade agreements with foreign nations until the people of the United States have had time to test the merits of the sixteen tariff-slashing pacts already in operation. He explains:

"We must wait until we can see the effect of our wage legislation, of our hour legislation and of our tax legislation. We simply cannot RAISE production costs at home and LOWER our defense against low production costs abroad.

"We should pause now—that is, if we expect to have any industry left in this country. Common sense tells us that we cannot move in two different directions at once."

That is the truth. We cannot guarantee our people an American standard of living and, at the same time, ask them to compete with the low wages and slave hours of Europe and Asia.

As the Senator expresses it, "we must have tariffs sufficiently high to keep all sweatshop and coolie-labor products out of the United States." We cannot commit industrial suicide.

ALL AMERICA BOUTS

—are more than a battle of fisticuffs, as the thousands who have seen them know. They express the spirit of competition, of striving and of forging ahead for perfection that has made this country the great nation it is today.

It is with this knowledge that the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser bring to the Boston Garden Monday night the Eastern finals of the All America championships.

The enthusiastic, young amateurs will provide action and thrills in abundance. That is certain. Every contest ought to be worth watching, for none of the commercialism that has too often marred boxing in recent years enters into this tournament.

In advance, we congratulate Monday's winners. May the best men win.

WE ARE PLEASED

—to say a good word for those friends of education who have formed an organization known as the Father Ahern Fellowship. Through their efforts, funds will be obtained to carry on the important study of seismology at Weston College.

A first activity of this group will be the presentation next Thursday evening of the motion picture, "Monastery," at the Fine Arts Theater.

The proceeds of this and other events will enable Weston College to improve its observatory, which, under the guidance of Father Ahern, has been foremost in adding to our knowledge of earthquakes and terrestrial disturbances.

30,095,000 AUTOS!

—That is the total number of motor vehicle registrations in the United States, according to the Travelers Insurance Company's tabulation. It is an all-time high! And equalled by no other country, the entire British Empire included.

We could not cite a figure more indicative of American prosperity and happiness than this. This country is vast, but we have the means to visit its every corner. In fact, our whole population could ride at one time if it were necessary.

Stop Hitting the Hive

By Nelson Harding

The Emperor Tiberius Caesar once admonished a provincial Governor who had been taxing the people to death: "A good shepherd shears his flock, not skins it."

In another branch of husbandry, bees store up no honey if the hive is being wrecked.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.

PURELY personal piffle: Nothing makes me feel more at home than a loud ticking hall clock. When I think of Bob Ripley living in the splendor of an island castle and roaming the world at will I recall his early days and what one fellow did with an idea. And don't worry about Youth's chances.

Only Rodgers and Hart tune I never liked: Johnny One Note. As a parlor trick I'd like to jabber away in that fake French like Charlie Judels. Best of the stints when the Windsors gave up their trip to U. S.: John Chapman's "And so to Bedaux!" Prediction: Next big headlines Russia's economic crack-up.

Favorite of the Amos 'n' Andy characters: The Kingfish. "The Song of India" sets me dreaming of a long travel trip. Not many can kid the other fellow with a straight face like Harry Staton, the syndicate man. Animal suffering makes me ill, with a temperature and everything.

When the household wants to see me beam, they announce beaten round steak with cream gravy, for dinner. Not more than a half a dozen O. Henry stories really fascinated. The rest always struck me as second rate. I like to hear the radio's "Professor Quiz" shout: "You are absolutely right!"

The only Algernon I ever knew was a hostler in a small town livery stable. And a fellow packed with odd information. Such as corduroy was originally a royal cloth for kings only—called cord-du-roi. The most bored expressions I've ever seen were in the boxes at the Metropolitan.

At one time I was the reporter on a country daily, galley usher in the local opera house and on Saturday passed handbills for my aunt's millinery shop to the farmers. Closet skeleton stuff: Also I spent a half hour in the cooler for swimming in the creek au naturel.

For no reason at all there are three people at whose approach along the street I sidle up to windows as though greatly interested until they pass. General Hugh Johnson is whipping over the neatest glove-fitting phrases among the daily scribblers. The most faithful employes ever known were two who tipped hats to male employers.

Rudest people in New York: The armined crew at first nights. My all-time favorite dig at restaurant prices is Bugs Baer's cry: "Waiter, my cheek and a fright wig!" I'd like to get the fun out of life at 60 that Daniel Frohman seems to get in his 80's. Frank Case is the only hotel man left who dines among guests in his own dining room.

Cantaloupe is the only food I cannot digest easily. Mrs. Walter Chrysler is the most striking white haired smart dresser. Shyest movie star ever met was Joan Crawford. Or she was putting on a swell act. H. G. Wells is souring his public with his windiness. I've tried this year to like football, but am still apathetic. Burris Jenkins, Jr., is another with Bob Edgren's gift to do a swell job of writing as well as drawing sports.

Easiest current model for the caricaturists: John L. Lewis. But none tops Ding's jutting-jawed limning of F. D. R. I can think of nothing so dismal as the Windsors with 70 trunks packed to sail, suddenly forced to cancel the trip. That would almost topple me off the water wagon. For many years I thought traveling incognito meant a private railroad coach.

Frederic Lonsdale wore the most attractive necktie I ever saw—a black silk foulard four-in-hand with one single vertical half inch pink stripe through the loop. Fame: Three secretaries of close friends address me as Od McIntire. But there was a kink in getting without delay a postcard Gene Fowler mailed in Palestine bearing only this: "O. O. McIntyre."

When a waiter starts pouring chocolate sauce over my ice cream I contrive to look the other way so he will keep right on pouring.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Senator Smith of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, admits he doesn't understand the Crop Control Bill. He even says that neither he nor his committee knows how much it will cost. At least, he is frank and honest. The fact is that NOBODY KNOWS ANYTHING about this crop control scheme.

The cost is only one of the unknown elements of crop control. The whole scheme is guesswork from start to finish. Nobody knows where the money is coming from to finance the experiment. Nobody knows that the plan will be constitutional.

One thing is certain. Federal control of farm crops will not be constitutional unless the United States Supreme Court reverses itself and takes back everything it said in the 6-3 decision holding the original AAA unconstitutional.

True, the tax features of the first AAA were the object of the attack made upon that measure. But the Supreme Court, in knocking out these taxes, declared positively the Federal Government is without authority either to buy or compel compliance with any crop control program.

The Farm Bill brought up in the Senate has been described as a "patchwork" and a "crazy quilt." It was rushed out of committee in half-baked form to give the Senate something other than the anti-lynching bill to talk about.

The spectacle of a Congress called into special session to consider important national issues wasting its time on such legislative tomfoolery as the anti-lynching measure was putting Congress in a bad light.

Any system of crop control is a matter of as much concern to people in the cities as on the farms. For everybody will have to share the cost and the people in the cities will pay the lion's share. Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture in his speech at Wichita Tuesday, told farmers that if a processing tax is levied to finance the new program "THE TAX WOULD ULTIMATELY BE PAID BY CONSUMERS." There isn't any question about that.

Any crop control scheme that is attempted will involve paying benefits to farmers for compliance. The means the rich farmer will get a Federal dole just the same as the poor farmer does. Taxing the rich to help the poor is an idea that appeals to a lot of people. But just think of the absurdity of taxing the poor to make the rich still richer!

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

This writer was not only curious but a mite skeptical. Checking up on the item, he was surprised to learn that it isn't so preposterous as it seems.

Bees have been trained. They can be "gentled" so they will snuggle in the palm of your hand—yours, not mine.

Anyway, Dr. Matsu has been working for years harnessing bees, with a tiny under-slung pocket for a microscopic message. Some are intractable; others don't mind taking up the yellow man's burden. He finds widely varying characteristics among bees—something resembling personality. Some bees are bright and teachable, quick to learn, regular apple-polishers, eager to oblige, others are either dumb or incorrigible.

Dr. Matsu breeds the brighter strains and here's a whole new air fleet flying for Japan.

He gets thirty miles to the hour out of a late model, soundly re-conditioned bee. They are, obviously, homing bees. The Mason bees have long puzzled scientists by their swift, unhesitating, unerring homeward flights to their hives. Straight as a bullet they go, no matter what you do to confuse them.

It's a quaint story, the tale of this little winged Mercury, a tiny golden arrow against the blue, bearing tidings for masters about whose doings it is perhaps best that it understands little. The poetic unities are marred in their use for war. Rather should they be winging through the sunlight to bring word to the princess in the castle tower that Launcelot will await below with the sinking of the new moon.

Lafcadio Hearn, shortly before his death, took back everything he had ever written about the Japanese being gentle, naive and poetic. This apostasy never has been published and he is still cited for his emphasis of these endearing qualities in the Japanese make-up.

His retraction of virtually everything he had ever written about Nippon was contained in letters to his friend Grant Wallace, an American correspondent in the Russo-Japanese war. I have this from a trustworthy friend, a New York newspaperman, who has examined the letters.

Hearn said, in effect, that the Japanese were the mostly coldly realistic people in the world, despite their ritualistic elaborations of poetry and sentiment.

Getting back to the bees, Foster A. Lockhart, the famous bee man of Lake George, New York, tells bee stories which would make it seem plausible if we heard that the Japanese taught them to goose-step and march in phalanx.

It happens that he has been sending specially bred bees to Japan, and it is possible they are the ones now being recruited for war service. After fifty years of bee culture, Mr. Lockhart says bees have both personality and character.

He says they dance for joy, moan with loss or bereavement and sing with happiness. He says there are racketeering and hijacking bees who just won't work. There are cadgers and no-good bees and sub-normal bees.

He has one bit of news which, if Japan hears it, probably will make her fire the whole lot of her carrier bees.

March of Events

TELEPATHY, or thought-transference, has at last come to be recognized as a FACT by science.

The experiments with cards carried on by Professor J. B. Rhine, of Duke University, N. C., show beyond a shadow of a doubt that certain minds can see the faces of cards and call them when the backs of the cards are turned toward them. In some cases the odds against the "guesses" being pure accident were, says Professor Rhine, "1 against a number containing several hundred figures."

Certainly there is no mind functioning now in the realm of thought less mystical or "goody" than Aldous Huxley's.

He speaks of these experiments in his book, "END AND MEANS."

"Professor Broad (another experimenter) concludes that it is probably necessary to postulate the existence of some kind of purely mental medium in which individual minds are bathed, as in a kind of non-physical ether."

This "mental medium," or UNIVERSAL MIND, which we shall soon find out—as the Hindus found out ages ago—exists independently of time and space.

Twenty years ago almost to a day this cable dispatch from London appeared in the American papers:

"When the American war mission and the British war cabinet met in their first conference at Downing street yesterday Premier Lloyd George said: 'The collapse of Russia and the recent reverses of Italy make it even more imperative than before that the United States should send as many troops as possible across the Atlantic as early as possible. I am anxious to know how soon the first million men can be expected in France.'"

The "FIRST MILLION MEN!" Are England and France getting ready to make "token payments" on their debts in order that they again may sit around their long tables and wait, with anxious faces, for millions more of American soldiers and blank checks on the United States Treasury!

That scene in Downing Street should NEVER be repeated!

"Have you got a thriller about you?" asks a writer in an English paper.

By "thriller" he means, can you be thrilled? Do your nerves respond easily to that which is new, wonderful, surprising?

There is no pleasanter and certainly no greater health-creating emotion than feeling an intoxicating vibration along the length of your nerves, in your stomach or in your brain over a new idea, a new discovery, a daring act, a waltz by Johann Strauss, or a marvelous sunset.

The Marxist writers tell us that drunkenness among the working classes, among other "social evils," has an economic root for its origin. "Capitalistic slavery" is at the bottom of intemperance.

Listen, World!

CONSTANT "h'ngin' around," has ruined more romances, destroyed more marriages, than all the other divorce grounds put together.

This notion that two loving hearts should always "beat as one" listens lovely in theory, but is plain poison in practice. There is no surer way to tear away the mystery and allure of love than continuous association.

People need privacy. We all have intervals when we must retreat into ourselves . . . when our spirits clamor to walk by their lone. And at such times we regard the intrusion of even the best beloved with resentment.

This craving for privacy is not abnormal or anti-social. It is a fundamental law of nature. IT IS THE DEEPEST PERSONAL RIGHT, AND IT TAKES PRECEDENCE OVER OUR SOCIAL DUTIES.

We are individuals, primarily, and unless we retain and develop that individuality, we fail in our other obligations. But we cannot retain our individuality unless we have times of temporary retreat.

At such times, we find our true selves again, regain our original pattern and purpose. The tension is loosed . . . we are no longer on guard. And in that silence, something happens to us . . . We are revived, reborn . . . we emerge cleansed and quickened, ready for larger living, deeper loving.

Or, rather, we would—if we had the chance! But just try to assert your "right to privacy" in the usual family circle, and see what it buys you. Black looks . . . pointed remarks . . . deep, dark suspicions. Are you sick? Then maybe you're mad? What—not mad? Then what does ail you? Haven't you any manners? Or perhaps you're Trying To Hide Something? And so on and on.

Resentment rises to its highest pitch in the home, where privacy is most needed. Wedlock soon becomes a deadly business unless there are buffers against the chafing of incessant intimacy. Those piquant differences and alluring mysteries, which first provoked love, speedily perish under the strangling possessiveness of the average marriage.

IT IS AS INDECENT TO MEDDLE WITH ANOTHER'S PRIVATE THOUGHTS AS IT IS TO USE HIS TOOTHBRUSH—AND AS OUTRAGEOUS TO MOLEST HIS SOLITUDE, UNINVITED, AS TO INVADE HIS BATHROOM.

There are dull and cowardly creatures who do not care for privacy themselves—who boast that their "love is so great" that they "wish to share everything." But love has nothing to do with it. These vacuums dislike and distrust privacy because they are unable to think themselves—and suspect the process in others.

Normal beings both desire and demand their seasons of withdrawal, and quite rightfully raise Cain if such rights aren't respected.
